TARIFF IN THE SENATE

The Dingley Bill Has at Last Made Its Appearance.

MANY CHANGES ARE NOTED.

Retroactive Clause Expunged and Reciprocity Is So Arranged That It Will Not Prove Detrimental to America.

Washington, May 5.—Senator Aldrich presented the tariff bill to the senate and gave notice that it would be called up on Tuesday, the 18th inst.

The time for the bill to take effect is made July 1, 1897, instead of May 1, as provided in the house, and the words in the first paragraph, "or withdrawn for consumption" (retroactive clause), are stricken out.

The bill was reported to the surprise of senators and the public. When the senate finance committee met the idea prevailed that the bill would be held in committee for two days. All the members of the committee were present.

The Democrats examined the bill for nearly an hour, making running comments upon it. They announced that they were against the bill as a whole. They soon understood that Senator Jones of Nevada was going to vote with the Republicans, and realized there was no possibility of changing the bill.

They had no desire to make any factious opposition, and when a motion was made by the Republicans to report the bill at once the vote was taken promptly. All the Republicans, with Senator Jones of Nevada, voted for the motion and all the Democrats against it, the vote standing 6 to 5.

The Republican members of the committee say there is no statement to be made now as to the effect of the bill, the amount of revenue to be raised by it or the reductions. When the bill is taken up in the senate Mr. Aldrich will make such a statement in the opening speech.

"It will raise revenue enough," was the comment of Senator Allison, assented to by Senator Aldrich. They estimated, however, that the increased revenue to be raised from beer would be $13,000,000, and from tea $10,000,000. Senator Jones of Arkansas, the Democratic tariff leader, said he expected there would be about six weeks' debate on the bill.

Several sections in the last part of the Dingley bill which re-enacted the present law are stricken out. This will have the effect of leaving the present law stand and avoid discussion to a great extent.

The new bill is radically different from the Dingley bill, practically amounting almost to another measure. Many important schedules were rewritten entirely.

Hides are to pay 1½ cents duty, but if the leather made from such hides is exported the duty is to be refunded. Coal is taxed at 75 cents per ton.

The internal revenue tax on beer is increased 44 cents per barrel until Jan. 1, 1900, when it is to be $1 (which is the present rate).

The entire house provision relating to reciprocity has been stricken out and the following section substituted: "That whenever any country, dependency or colony shall pay or bestow, directly or indirectly, any bounty or grant upon the exportation of any article or merchandise from such country, dependency or colony, and such article or merchandise is dutiable under the provisions of this act, then upon the importation of any such article or merchandise into the United States there shall be levied and paid in all such cases, in addition to the duties otherwise imposed by this act, an additional duty equal to the net amount of such bounty or grant, however the same be bestowed or paid."

The house provision in the tariff bill keeping in force the Hawaiian reciprocity treaty is stricken out, the effect being indirectly to abrogate the treaty and impose the same duty on Hawaiian sugars as is imposed on sugars from other countries.

The lumber schedule is changed by adding after the word timber the words, "Hewn, sided or squared and round timber," and the duty fixed at the rate of 1 cent per cubic foot, as in the house bill. The rate of $2 per 1,000 feet on all sawed boards, etc., is retained, with additions for dressed lumber.

Many and important changes were made by the senate tariff subcommittee in the wool and woolen schedule as passed by the house. First-class wools were reduced from 11 cents per pound, as provided in the house bill, to 8 cents per pound, and second class wools from 12 to 9 cents, whereas the duties on wools of the third class were raised.

The dividing line in this latter class was placed at 10 cents value, wools under that value being made dutiable at the rate of 4 cents per pound instead of 32 per cent ad valorem, as in the house bill. Skein wools valued at more than 10 cents per pound were placed at 7 cents per pound instead of 50 per cent ad valorem.

The wool growers failed to secure all the changes which they desired in classification, but it is understood that the rates fixed on the wools themselves are satisfactory to them.

SENATOR JONES

Will Act With the Republicans on the Tariff Question.

Washington, May 5.—The subcommittee on the tariff bill has agreed to concede an advance on oranges and lemons, providing for a duty on them of 1 cent a pound. This is in accordance with the request of the California growers as presented by Senator Jones. There also will be an increase on borax and soda and their preparations, but it will not be so great as the Nevada senator requested. A duty on hides and a slight increase on third-class wools also are assured.

Senator Jones will certainly vote to take the bill out of committee. He takes the position that the silver Republicans want the bill passed, even though it may not afford all the protection they may desire, and while he may not get all he asks, will vote to put the bill in the senate.

The bill will be presented to the full committee at 10 a. m., but the present plans do not contemplate giving it to the press until it shall be presented to the senate.

Want Allotment Delayed.

Washington, May 5.—American Horse and Red Cloud and other Sioux from the Pine Ridge Indian agency in South Dakota have had an interview with Secretary Bliss, in which they paid their respects and aired alleged grievances. A delegation of Wichita and Caddos from Kansas also are here with the object of delaying the work of allotment on the Wichita reservation, now well under way.

Knockout Drops Robbery.

Washington, May 5.—William M. Foresman, a railroad man of Madison, Wis., was the victim of a knockout drops robbery in the disreputable quarter of the city. The robbers secured $75 and a railroad pass for Foresman and his wife between here and Chicago. Foresman as brought into the station house dazed from chloral. His assailants escaped.

Japan Kicks on the Tariff.

Washington, May 5.—Consul General McIvor, at Kanagawa, reports to the state department that, according to current reports, the Japanese government is about to send a commission to Washington for the purpose of influencing a reduction of the increased import duties which (according to the American papers) it was proposed to levy on silk.

Resolutions of Regret.

Washington, May 5.—At the annual meeting of the Ohio Republican association of the District of Columbia resolutions of regret were adopted upon the death of Michael Sells, president of the organization. He was a native of Georgetown, O., had an enviable war record, and was president of the Ohio association from 1893 to the time of his death.

Selling the Canal Outfit.

Washington, May 5.—United States Consul O'Hara, at San Juan del Norte, reports to the state department that the government of Nicaragua has sent an agent there to buy from the Maritime Canal company of Nicaragua such instruments, furniture, etc., as the government may require. The agent has bought about $3,000 worth of stuff for $3,636, and but little remains to be sold.

Demand Made on Germany.

Washington, May 5.—The state department has directed Ambassador Uhl at Berlin to make a demand for the immediate release of an American citizen named Mayer, who, the authorities consider, has been wrongfully impressed into the military service of the German government. He was born in America, but his father was never naturalized.

Postmaster For St. Louis.

Washington, May 5.—It is probable that the recent embezzlement of $15,000 at the St. Louis postoffice and the subsequent arrest of Cashier Hays and recovery of the money will be followed by a change in the postmastership. The present postmaster is James L. Carlisle, and his term does not expire until March 19 next.

Physicians In Congress.

Washington, May 5.—About 500 members of the medical profession, among them some of the most distinguished specialists in the country, are in Washington to attend the fourth triennial congress of American physicians and surgeons, which continues until Thursday evening.

PREPARING FOR A COUP

Edhem Pasha Believed to Be Trying to Fool the Greeks.

TO STRIKE A DEADLY BLOW.

In the Meantime Confidence Has Been Restored at Volo and King George's Troops Appear to Be In Good Trim.

Constantinople, May 5.—The difficulty of saying what has actually occurred at the seat of war continues, but the presumption from the known facts of the military situation is that Edhem Pasha is feeling the Greek position at Pharsalos preparatory to delivering a general attack.

Edhem Pasha's repeated assaults on the wings of the Greek formation have probably the object of compelling Prince Constantine to send them reinforcements and thus weaken his center at Pharsalos. It may soon, therefore, develop that Edhem Pasha has struck hard at this weakened point.

It looks as though Greece were giving up the game in Crete, and the recall of Colonel Vassos can only be regarded as making overtures for peace, and is apparently the first step in that direction.

Greece may thus regain the friendship of the powers, which have always stipulated this amende before using their good offices at Constantinople.

The appointment of a successor to Colonel Vassos is undoubtedly only being made to allay popular protests.

SITUATION IMPROVING.

Greeks Now Seem to Have Good Control of Volo.

Volo, Thessaly, May 5.—The situation here seems to be improving under the command of Smolenski. The army is divided into three divisions. Twelve thousand men, under command of Smolenski, are at Velestino to defend the approaches to Volo; 5,000 men are encamped at Pharsala, and the rest of the army, with Prince Constantine, 10,000 in number, is at Domoko, south of Pharsala. These last will have to stand an attack of the Turks from Trikkala.

The Greek fleet has just arrived in the harbor, and the panic which prevailed is lessening. Three cruisers—one French, one English and one Italian—are also here. The consuls have behaved splendidly, being the only persons in the town who had not lost their heads.

William Is Surprised.

Athens, May 5.—Owing to the war the fetes in celebration of the king's birthday have been postponed. A personage connected with the court says that Emperor William of Germany, in admitting the superiority of the Greek over the Turkish artillery, expressed surprise that Greece had never employed German officers to organize her artillery, which, he added, if well organized, would be excellent.

Turks Are a Bit Shy.

Athens, May 5.—A dispatch from Pharsalos says the Turks have avoided making any further attack upon Velestino, contenting themselves with reconnoitering the neighborhood of that place. The Greeks, it is announced, occupy strong positions, which enable them to repulse superior forces.

Strengthening Her Army.

Constantinople, May 5.—It has been decided to increase the strength of the Turkish army in the European provinces to 300,000 men, in order to be prepared for all emergencies. Including the troops in Anatolia, Turkey will soon have 500,000 troops under arms.

King George Turns a Trick.

Paris, May 5.—The Gil Blas says the king of Greece used the crisis in the affairs of his country to speculate in Greek and Turkish bonds, with the result that his majesty has cleared 30,000,000 to 35,000,000 francs.

Greeks Are Aggressive.

Arta, Epirus, May 5.—A force of 6,000 Greeks, commanded by Colonel Bairactharis, while advancing on Pen-tepihlada, was engaged by the Turks. A battle is now in progress.

Busy Month For Sports.

San Francisco, May 5.—This will be a busy month for the boxers, as no less than 50 local sports have arranged entertainments in the fist line.

Dunlop In the Penitentiary.

Chicago, May 5.—Joseph Dunlop, publisher of the Chicago Dispatch, was taken to Joliet at 2 p. m. to begin his 2-year penitentiary sentence.

WELLSVILLE.

TESTIMONY IS NEEDED

The Body of Willie Geisse Will Be Exhumed.

SOMETHING ABOUT THE BULLET

Prosecutor Speaker Is Expected In Wells-ville, and More Evidence In the Case Against Patrick Malone Will Be Hunted Out.

There are evidences around Wellsville that Prosecutor Speaker will make a strong attempt to convict Patrick Malone as he is charged by the grand jury.

It is said that the prosecutor has had an agent in the city quietly looking up the facts, and a considerable amount of important evidence not brought out at the hearing or inquest will be produced at the trial. On what lines this is laid could not be learned, but parties in position to know all about it were inclined to believe that the story is true. It is also known that the body of Willie Geisse will be exhumed, and another examination made. It is desired that the bullet be found, and with this end in view the action will be taken. The examination is expected to result in the addition of valuable testimony to that already in the hands of the prosecutor.

A SOLDIER'S DEATH.

He Was a Brave Man and Had an Hon-orable Record.

Major Joseph H. Riddle died this morning at 7 o'clock, at his home in this place, heart trouble being the cause. Major Riddle was a member of the One Hundred and Fourth Ohio Volunteer Infantry, General Riley's regiment, and recruited Company F. He entered the service as captain August 16, 1862, and was made major for gallant and meritorious services August 11, 1864. He served with his regiment for three years, and was in many of the important engagements of the rebellion. "He was a splendid officer and good soldier," said General Riley in speaking of him today.

Major Riddle was born in Wellsville, and resided here the greater part of the time, having studied law under General Riley, graduating from the Cleveland law school. Two sisters, Mrs. Hettie Shepherd and Miss Fannie Riddle survive him. His death has awakened feelings of deepest regret among his comrades and throughout the city. Arrangements for the funeral have not been completed.

ANCIENT CORPORATIONS.

Trade Monopolies That Were Almost Savage In Their Operation.

Apprentices became no better than serfs and slaves. They were not merely pitilessly fined and brutally punished,
they were often left in ignorance of the craft that they had purchased the right to learn. In that frightful social and moral revulsion following the long and devastating wars of the sixteenth and
seventeenth centuries the corporations
became more determined than ever to maintain their industrial aristocracy
and monopoly. They refused to admit any trade less ancient and honorable
than their own to the rights and privileges of the law; they soiled themselves
by contact with no person of illegitimate birth; and in their savage and relentless pursuit of persons engaged in unauthorized traffic they invaded the homes of contraband workmen, confiscating both their tools and the hidden products of their toil, leaving them and their families destitute and starving.

To such absurd lengths was the creation of corporations carried for the production of new taxes and new places for court favorites that occupations like the teaching of dancing, the selling of flowers and the catching of birds were organized, and homogeneous occupations
like the hatmakers' and carpenters' were divided and subdivided beyond the comprehension of the modern mind. But despite the ingenuity of lawyers and the vigilance of armies of inspectors the lines of demarcation could not be drawn so sharply as to avoid conflicts of interests. The makers of felt hats quarreled with the makers of cotton hats. The spinners who had purchased the right to use hemp quarreled
with those that had purchased the right to use flax. The shoemakers fought with the cobblers that reproduced more than two-thirds of an old shoe. The cutters that made the handles of knives
fought with those that made the blades.
The relations of the makers of wooden porringers and the makers of wooden spoons were equally belligerent. —

Monthly.

GREAT CUBAN VICTORY

Bayamo Captured and the Spaniards Completely Routed.

THE DYNAMITE GUN USED.

Spanish General Removed From His Command and to Be Sent to Madrid at Once to Answer Charges of Cowardice.

Havana, May 5.—Cuban troops led by General Jesus Robi recently defeated the Spanish column of General Rey.
The Spaniards numbered 1,300, or over twice as many as the insurgents who were pitted against them. Rey's rout was so complete that he has been removed from his command by Weyler, and will be sent to Spain to answer charges of cowardice before a military tribunal.

Rabi was encamped near Bayamo, when his scouts brought news to him of the withdrawal of the regular Spanish troops from that city and the abandonment of the place to the local volunteers. General Calixto Garcia, commanding the Department of the East, sent one of his dynamite guns with the best trained crew under his command, with instructions to Rabi to fall upon the city forthwith.

Rabi had little difficulty in taking the city. The volunteers offered slight resistance, not holding out long enough to warrant bringing the dynamite gun into play. The insurgents sacked the government commissary, liberated Cubans in the prisons, and supplied themselves with all the arms and ammunition that the garrison contained. They nailed the Cuban Colors to the flagstaff on the City hall and were about to evacuate the city and bear off the plunder when Rey's forces hove in sight. Rabi's forces were still in Bayamo when Rey's advance was discovered.

Fleeing volunteers had taken the news of the attack on Bayamo to Rey at Manzanillo, and the Spanish general, on the point of embarking with his command for Havana and thence to Spain, decided to hurry back to Bay-amo to the relief of the garrison.

Rabi took up a position beyond the city and awaited the coming of the Spanish hosts. Before Rey's men could fire a shot the dynamite gun was opened on them and a rattling fire of musketry followed. The Spaniards, though taken by surprise, pushed on bravely.

The terrific work of the dynamite gun, which was used with frightful effect, however, at length dismayed them and a panic was soon the result. The terrorized men retreated in disorder and were far beyond the control of their officers.

The slaughter of the Spanish troops by the dynamite gun was terrible. The insurgents were practically unscathed, the enemy having scarcely a chance to fire. Garcia decided not to hold Bayamo, having need of the men for more important work.

HORRIBLE HOLOCAUST.

Thirty Bodies Recovered and May Persons Still Missing.

Paris, May 5.—Fire broke out in a crowded charitable bazaar in the Rue Jean-Goujon, at which the Duchess d'Uzes and other well known patronesses were present. Many people were burned to death and there was a terrible panic, during which a number of persons were injured.

Thirty bodies have been recovered, 35 injured people are being cared for by physicians, and many are reported missing.

Gone to Washington.

Frankfort, Ky., May 5.—The delayed certificate of Hon. W. J. Deboe's election as United States senator reached the governor and he completed the preparation of the credentials two minutes before the departure of the morning train for Washington. Mr. De-boe left on this train, accompanied by a number of applicants for office.

A Commendable Enterprise.

Melbourne, May 5.—There is a movement on foot here to send 20,000 sheep and 5,000 bullocks to England in connection with the dinner which the Princess of Wales is promoting for the poor of the slums of London upon the occasion of the celebration of the queen's diamond jubilee, June 22.

Senator Tolain Dead.

Paris, May 5.—Henri Louis Tolain, val, etc., $5,000 to $10,000; Grand Army, no insurance, total loss; the Simons building, insured for $4,000, loss $5,000;

the Glidden building, insured for $4,000, loss $5,000 to $6,000; Abe Young had no insurance on building occupied by Barry's shoe store, loss $3,500.

A Woman In the Case.

Bellaire, O., May 5.—The sudden disappearance of a young lady music teacher from this city, following that
of Cashier Harry Clark, who absconded from Bridgeport a week ago, has coupled their names and caused such investigation as to leave little doubt
that there was "a woman at the bottom" of Clark's troubles. Clark has a wife and family in Bridgeport. Clark and the girl are said to be in Cripple Creek, Colo.

New Incorporations.

Columbus, O., May 5.—The Duhme
Jewelry company, Cincinnati, capital stock $100,000; the Stark Electric Railway company, Waynesburg, capital

M. Bickford and Dr. C. K. Cole, members of the state capital building commission who were removed by Governor Smith, have determined to bring suit against Representative Fred Whiteside for $10,000 damages each for alleged defamatory statements made
by him in a report to the legislature
as the minority of a committee appointed to investigate the affairs of the commission, in which the representative said that the commissioners have
been guilty of collusion in selecting
the plans and in letting the contracts
for the work.

Treasury Statement.

Washington, May 5.—The statement
of the condition of the treasury shows:
Available cash balance, $232,154,171;
gold reserve, $149,854,337.

Nevada.

Nevada is the victim of circumstances. Rich in the potentialities of material greatness, and therefore strong
in the capacity to support a social structure, she presents the baffling paradox
of a declining population in a western state. If she were located in South Africa, the nations of Europe would plot
and struggle for possession of her minerals, lands and waters; if in New South Wales, the colonial government
would employ the public capital to reclaim her deserts and to enable the surplus population of Adelaide to make homes upon her soil; if in Germany,
the imperial government would charter
"rent banks," to operate under a commission, in preparing the land for settlement and building humble houses, to be purchased by home seekers on generous terms; if in Holland, the servants
of the little queen would extend the admirable colonies which have flourished
for 75 years, graduating thousands of needy men from beggary to tenantry,
from tenantry to proprietorship.—William E. Smythe in Forum.

WELLSVILLE.

The Body of Willie Geisse Will Be Exhumed.

Prosecutor Speaker Is Expected In Wells-ville, and More Evidence In the Case Against Patrick Malone Will Be Hunted Out.

There are evidences around Wellsville that Prosecutor Speaker will make a strong attempt to convict Patrick Malone as he is charged by the grand jury.

It is said that the prosecutor has had an agent in the city quietly looking up the facts, and a considerable amount of important evidence not brought out at the hearing or inquest will be produced at the trial. On what lines this is laid could not be learned, but parties in position to know all about it were inclined to believe that the story is true. It is also known that the body of Willie Geisse will be exhumed, and another examination made. It is desired that the bullet be found, and with this end in view the action will be taken. The examination is expected to result in the addition of valuable testimony to that already in the hands of the prosecutor.

A SOLDIER'S DEATH.

He Was a Brave Man and Had an Hon-orable Record.

Major Joseph H. Riddle died this morning at 7 o'clock, at his home in this place, heart trouble being the cause. Major Riddle was a member of the One Hundred and Fourth Ohio Volunteer Infantry, General Riley's regiment, and recruited Company F. He entered the service as captain August 16, 1862, and was made major for gallant and meritorious services August 11, 1864. He served with his regiment for three years, and was in many of the important engagements of the rebellion. "He was a splendid officer and good soldier," said General Riley in speaking of him today.

Major Riddle was born in Wellsville, and resided here the greater part of the time, having studied law under General Riley, graduating from the Cleveland law school. Two sisters, Mrs. Hettie Shepherd and Miss Fannie Riddle survive him. His death has awakened feelings of deepest regret among his comrades and throughout the city. Arrangements for the funeral have not been completed.

ANCIENT CORPORATIONS.

Trade Monopolies That Were Almost Sav-
age In Their Operation.

Apprentices became no better than serfs and slaves. They were not merely
pitilessly fined and brutally punished,
they were often left in ignorance of the
craft that they had purchased the right
became more determined than ever to
maintain their industrial aristocracy
and monopoly. They refused to admit
any trade less ancient and honorable
than their own to the rights and privileges of the law; they soiled themselves
by contact with no person of illegiti-
mate birth; and in their savage and re-
unauthorized traffic they invaded the
homes of contraband workmen, confis-
cating both their tools and the hidden
products of their toil, leaving them and
their families destitute and starving.

tion of corporations carried for the production of new taxes and new places for
court favorites that occupations like the
teaching of dancing, the selling of flowers and the catching of birds were organized, and homogeneous occupations
divided and subdivided beyond the comprehension of the modern mind. But despite the ingenuity of lawyers and
the vigilance of armies of inspectors the lines of demarcation could not be drawn so sharply as to avoid con-
hats quarreled with the makers of cot-
chased the right to use hemp quarreled
with those that had purchased the right
to use flax. The shoemakers fought
than two-thirds of an old shoe. The cutters that made the handles of knives
fought with those that made the blades.
The relations of the makers of wooden
Franklin Smith in Popular Science Monthly.

A Woman In the Case.

Bellaire, O., May 5.—The sudden disappearance of a young lady music
teacher from this city, following that
of Cashier Harry Clark, who abscond-
ed from Bridgeport a week ago, has
investigation as to leave little doubt
that there was "a woman at the bottom" of Clark's troubles. Clark has a wife and family in Bridgeport. Clark
and the girl are said to be in Cripple

New Incorporations.

Columbus, O., May 5.—The Duhme
Jewelry company, Cincinnati, capital
stock $100,000; the Stark Electric Railway company, Waynesburg, capital stock $10,000; the Faulk Brothers company, East Liverpool, capital stock $12,000; the Damien Council, No. 180,
Y. M. I., Cincinnati.

Looks Like Murder.

Cleveland, May 5.—The body of R.
E. Osborn of Detroit, Mich., was found in the hold of the steam barge Olympia in the harbor here. Osborn's head was crushed in and his clothing had been stripped of valuables. The police believe that he was murdered.

Worthless Notes on Hand.

Cincinnati, May 5.—The announcement is made that there are $142,000 of worthless notes in the city treasury which have been counted all along as cash, and which incoming Treasurer Eshelby will probably refuse to accept from Treasurer Zeigler.

Cash In Ohio Treasury.

Columbus, O., May 5.—The counting of the funds in the state treasury shows the following on hand: General revenue fund, $615,739.44; sinking fund, $192,386.19; common school fund, $135,- 291.23; State university fund, $73,877.32; total, $1,017,294.18.

Caught In the Act.

Delaware, O., May 5.—Eufaw Connel, Morris Bennett and Dick Keefe, three local crooks, were arrested while in the act of holding up Mr. Wheeler, a student in the Ohio Wesleyan university.

Springfield's New Boss.

Springfield, O., May 5.—The police and fire board elected R. S. Black chief of police. Fire Chief Follrath was re-elected.

Broke His Neck.

Delaware, O., May 5.—John W. New-lan of Columbus fell from the new library building and broke his neck.

Shortage In Waterworks.

Cincinnati, May 5.—A large shortage has been discovered in the waterworks and officers have been suspended.

Charged With Assault.

Columbus, O., May 5.—John Olendorf is charged with assaulting 8-year-old Annie Cloman.

Spiritualists In Convention.

Columbus, O., May 5.—The state convention of spiritualists is in session here.

STATESMAN IN TROUBLE.

Wild Statement Causes Damage Suits to Be Brought Against Him.

Helena, Mon., May 5.—Judge Walter
M. Bickford and Dr. C. K. Cole, members of the state capitol building commission who were removed by Governor Smith, have determined to bring
suit against Representative Fred Whiteside for $10,000 damages each for
alleged defamatory statements made
commission, in which the representa-
been guilty of collusion in selecting
for the work.

Washington, May 5.—The statement
of the condition of the treasury shows:
Available cash balance, $232,154,171;
gold reserve, $149,854,337.

Nevada.

Nevada is the victim of circum-
material greatness, and therefore strong
in the capacity to support a social structure, she presents the baffling paradox
of a declining population in a western
state. If she were located in South Africa, the nations of Europe would plot
and struggle for possession of her minerals, lands and waters; if in New South Wales, the colonial government
would employ the public capital to re-
claim her deserts and to enable the surplus population of Adelaide to make
homes upon her soil; if in Germany,
the imperial government would charter
"rent banks," to operate under a commission, in preparing the land for settlement and building humble houses, to
be purchased by home seekers on generous terms; if in Holland, the servants
of the little queen would extend the ad-
needy men from beggary to tenantry,
liam E. Smythe in Forum.

Weeping and Crying.

"Don't cry," he entreated.
Then he perceived that her handkerchief was edged with the most exquisite lace.
"Don't weep," he said, correcting himself.—Detroit Journal.

During the last administration he and the president had a serious disagreement, resulting from the admiral's criticism in an interview on the foreign policy of the administration.

Clutching at a Straw.

San Francisco, May 5.—Attorney
Douprey, counsel for Theodore Dur-rant who is now in San Quentin under sentence of death, has filed an important document in Judge Behr's court,
it being a copy of his proposed bill of exceptions on appeal to the supreme court. The exceptions are to the proceedings of April 10, when a motion
for a continuance in Durrant's case
was denied and an order committing Durrant to San Quentin to await execution on June 11 made.

May Be a Strike.

New York, May 5.—A general strike, involving about 20,000 mechanics, members of the building trades, may be ordered as a result of the trouble between the Marble Industries association and the White Stone Association
of Marble Workers. Local Assembly

No. 4855, Knights of Labor, and the Compact Labor Club of Marble Workers' Helpers, Local Assembly No. 1648,
Knights of Labor.

Old Documents Found.

Albany, May 5.—State Comptroller
Roberts, in his search for revolutionary papers which have been hidden for a century in the Statehouse, has come across some ancient documents,
which are the oldest he has yet found,
and which are pertinently interesting
at this time, inasmuch as they relate
to excise accounts received by the state, then a colony of Great Britain,
between the years 1710 and 1768.

Exhibition to Be Prohibited.

Pueblo, Colo., May 5.—Exhibition of kinetoscope pictures of the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight is to be prohibited
in Pueblo. On petition of the Women's Christian Temperance union of this
city the aldermen instructed the city
attorney to draw up such an ordinance.
The petition was granted without discussion.

Earthquake In Michigan.

Niles, Mich., May 5.—Reports from
many towns in southwestern Michigan say an earthquake shock was felt for several seconds Sunday night. At Holland the front of a brick building fell into the street.

Lions In a Cellar.

Sunol, Cal., May 5.—Antonio Nunez
discovered a lion and lioness and four cubs in his cellar. The lion was killed, the lioness escaped, and the cubs were captured.

Actor Thorne Dead.

New York, May 5.—Edwin F. Thorne,
the actor, died after a long illness.

About Ready to Sail.

Bloomington, Ills., May 5.—Ex-Vice President Adlai E. Stevenson will sail
from New York for Havre next Saturday on the steamer Touraine, in company with Messrs. Wolcott and Paine,
the other members of the bimetallic
commission.

The River Is Stationary.

New Orleans, May 5.—The river still remains stationary. Some of the engineers now say the danger may not pass for three weeks.

Stricken With Paralysis.

Waco, Tex., May 5.—Ex-United States Senator Richard Coke has been stricken with paralysis and his condition is critical.

Servant and Money Missing.

Chicago, May 5.—A man named Law-
rance, a confidential servant of Mrs.
Arthur H. Blair, has disappeared, and
with him diamonds to the value of $3,000 and $2,500 in money.

WHAT TO EAT.

Some Sensible Suggestions That Should
Be Posted In Every Household.

Aralstonite, writing in that excellent gastronomic journal, What to Eat,
makes a few sensible suggestions in regard to the diet that ought to be posted in every household. He says that the healthiest and purest lives come from those who do not eat meat before the age of 15.

Potatoes, sliced thin and fried, are indigestible. While tasting delicious, they afford no real nourishment and cause a derangement of the liver.

Cake clogs the stomach. All rich pastry is poison to the liver. Soft caramels and creams are also bad for any one with a liver at all rebellions.

When you get old, look out for your
food. Do you every notice that grandfather's face is not as jolly as it used
slowly disappearing, though he is getting fleshier every day. He needs a change of food. Probably he has been eating buckwheat cakes and sirup, white bread and butter, sugar, fat meats, etc.
Give him lean meat and fish, cracked
wheat and potatoes, barley cakes, rye bread or southern corn cakes. Try it,
and instead of moping and sitting round
the house all day you will find him running around lively as a cricket.

Maybe, on the contrary, he is growing thin and pale. Then he needs buckwheat and molasses, fat meats, mashed potatoes in milk, northern corn, cracked wheat and fish, oatmeal porridge and fruits every morning.

All rules have their exceptions, and
the diet described for the mass may not answer for exceptional cases, but the following directions are good for the
majority:

Milk is the simplest and most natural food. If you cannot drink it, your stomach is in a diseased condition. Cheese is a good substitute, if mild, fresh and
made from pure milk and cream. Persons who live mostly on vegetables have
the best nerves and the best complexions. Red pepper is an excellent condiment. Its effect upon the liver is remarkable. Malaria, intermittent fever
or congestive chills cannot endure the presence of red pepper. Pure red pepper (known as cayenne) should be on every
table.

Ill health is caused largely by improper food or by food which is in a bad condition when it is eaten.

Chattanooga, May 5.—Advices from upper east Tennessee and southern Kentucky show that a general strike
in all the coal mines in that section
will probably occur during the next few days.

Can Not Interfere.

Indianapolis, May 5.—Attorney General Ketcham makes the announcement that he does not see his way clear to interfere with the continuous racing proposed in Lake county under the new
Hammond and Crown Point.

In the Railroad Business.

Boise, Ida., May 5.—Ex-Senator F. T.
Dubois has been elected president of
the Payette (Idaho) Construction company, organized to construct 108 miles
of railroad from Payette to the Seven Devils' copper mining region.

criticism in an interview on the foreign policy of the administration.

Clutching at a Straw.

San Francisco, May 5.—Attorney Doupree, counsel for Theodore Dur-rant who is now in San Quentin under
sentence of death, has filed an important document in Judge Behr's court,
it being a copy of his proposed bill of
exceptions on appeal to the supreme court. The exceptions are to the proceedings of April 10, when a motion
for a continuance in Durrant's case
was denied and an order committing
cution on June 11 made.

May Be a Strike.

New York, May 5.—A general strike,
involving about 20,000 mechanics, mem-
ordered as a result of the trouble between the Marble Industries association and the White Stone Association
of Marble Workers. Local Assembly

No. 4855, Knights of Labor, and the Compact Labor Club of Marble Workers' Helpers, Local Assembly No. 1648,
Knights of Labor.

Old Documents Found.

Albany, May 5.—State Comptroller
Roberts, in his search for revolutionary papers which have been hidden for a century in the Statehouse, has
come across some ancient documents,
which are the oldest he has yet found,
to excise accounts received by the
state, then a colony of Great Britain,

Pueblo, Colo., May 5.—Exhibition of
kinetoscope pictures of the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight is to be prohibited
in Pueblo. On petition of the Women's Christian Temperance union of this
city the aldermen instructed the city
attorney to draw up such an ordinance.
The petition was granted without discussion.

Niles, Mich., May 5.—Reports from
many towns in southwestern Michigan
say an earthquake shock was felt for several seconds Sunday night. At Holland the front of a brick building
fell into the street.

Lions In a Cellar.

Sunol, Cal., May 5.—Antonio Nunez
discovered a lion and lioness and four
cubs in his cellar. The lion was killed,
captured.

New York, May 5.—Edwin F. Thorne,

Bloomington, Ills., May 5.—Ex-Vice President Adlai E. Stevenson will sail
from New York for Havre next Saturday on the steamer Touraine, in company with Messrs. Wolcott and Paine,
the other members of the bimetallic
commission.

The River Is Stationary.

New Orleans, May 5.—The river still
remains stationary. Some of the engineers now say the danger may not

Waco, Tex., May 5. — Ex-United States Senator Richard Coke has been stricken with paralysis and his condition is critical.

Servant and Money Missing.

Chicago, May 5.—A man named Law-
rance, a confidential servant of Mrs.
Arthur H. Blair, has disappeared, and
with him diamonds to the value of $3,000 and $2,500 in money.

WHAT TO EAT.

Be Posted In Every Household.

Aralstonite, writing in that excellent gastronomic journal, What to Eat,
makes a few sensible suggestions in regard to the diet that ought to be posted
those who do not eat meat before the
age of 15.

Potatoes, sliced thin and fried, are in-
digestible. While tasting delicious, they afford no real nourishment and cause a derangement of the liver.

pastry is poison to the liver. Soft car-
one with a liver at all rebellious.

When you get old, look out for your
slowly disappearing, though he is getting fleshier every day. He needs a change of food. Probably he has been
eating buckwheat cakes and sirup, white
bread and butter, sugar, fat meats, etc.
Give him lean meat and fish, cracked
wheat and potatoes, barley cakes, rye
bread or southern corn cakes. Try it,
and instead of moping and sitting round
ning around lively as a cricket.

Maybe, on the contrary, he is growing
thin and pale. Then he needs buckwheat and molasses, fat meats, mashed
potatoes in milk, northern corn, cracked
wheat and fish, oatmeal porridge and
fruits every morning.

All rules have their exceptions, and
the diet described for the mass may not
answer for exceptional cases, but the
following directions are good for the
majority:

Milk is the simplest and most natural
food. If you cannot drink it, your stomach is in a diseased condition. Cheese is
made from pure milk and cream. Persons who live mostly on vegetables have
the best nerves and the best complex-
ions. Red pepper is an excellent condi-
ment. Its effect upon the liver is re-
presence of red pepper. Pure red pepper
table.

Ill health is caused largely by im-
proper food or by food which is in a bad

upper east Tennessee and southern Kentucky show that a general strike
few days.

Indianapolis, May 5.—Attorney General Ketcham makes the announcement
that he does not see his way clear to
proposed in Lake county under the new

In the Railroad Business.

Boise, Ida., May 5.—Ex-Senator F. T.
the Payette (Idaho) Construction company, organized to construct 108 miles
of railroad from Payette to the Seven Devils' copper mining region.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., WEDNESDAY, MAY 5

THE airship apparently has some strong affection for Columbiana county. Another letter from its occupants has been found in Salem.

Using the vote of last year as a basis the Republican majority in the next legislature will be 50. That number will keep the lieutenants of Johny McLean on the jump through many a weary day.

EXPERTS say that the compound duties so earnestly desired by American potters make up an experiment, and experiments of this character usually fail. It has been noticed before that these experts, always free traders, are prone to err.

A FEW Democrats met in a New York hotel the other day and made up the slate for use at the next Ohio convention. By it McLean is to be endorsed for senator and Paul Sorg nominated for governor. If money can carry out plans this ought to be a winner.

If the American Mechanics decide to have the state convention meet here next year, they can rest assured that East Liverpool will stand by them, and will aid in entertaining the visitors such as they are seldom entertained when they visit the smaller cities of Ohio.

PRESIDENT MCKINLEY and the cabinet talked long and earnestly yesterday on the question of reforming the civil service, and there are numerous people in Washington who would give a good bit for a few crumbs of conversation as they fell from that intellectual feast.

PRESIDENT MCKINLEY is showing some of the New York politicians that statesmen are sometimes versed in the art of politics. In the face of plots and schemes to involve him in a war, the president has quietly held his peace and whipped his enemies in that state to a stand still.

SOME Findlay chap wants the silver Republicans of Ohio to send a delegate to the Chicago convention, and with that end in view invites them to drop him a line. The fact that this appeal is being given a prominent place in Democratic papers shows the source from which it emanates.

NO MORE DELAY.

The senate should not delay in transforming the tariff bill into law. Of that there has already been far too much. The importers will waste no time in shipping all the merchandise they can buy across the sea, and it is not right that American manufacturers should be compelled to meet this competition longer than is absolutely necessary. There are errors in the bill, there always are errors in tariff bills, but the senate need not occupy the next few months doing what can be done in a few weeks.

POLITICAL WISDOM.

Governor Bushnell has again put to sleep the silly stories concerning his alleged senatorial candidacy by stating in the simplest words at his command that there is but one senatorial candidate among the Republicans of the state, and that man is Hon. M. A. Hanna. Governor Bushnell does not want the place. There might have been a time when he was after it, but that time has gone by. When he appointed Mr. Hanna he took a stand that he will maintain despite the jeering, impudent Democratic press.

A California Row.

Two women, neighbors, caused a great commotion in California hollow yesterday. Some trivial domestic matter was the cause.

MUSIC FOR FIREMEN

Concerts Will Be Held Once a Week.

THE FIRST WAS LAST NIGHT

A Good Program Was Rendered, and the Boys Hope to Have Many More—Chief Morley Has Given His Consent—A Graphophone Will Be Purchased.

The firemen and some of their friends have decided that each Tuesday evening shall be celebrated by a concert, and preparations for entertainments are now going on. Their first was conducted last night.

An excellent program was rendered, all the numbers being given by well known local people. The autoharp solo by Charles Usler was vigorously applauded, and Lawrence Heddleson's phonograph was a favorite. Stereopticon views were given by Professor Rowe and Professor Green, and the whistling of Ed Hatton almost brought down the house. The next concert will be held at the station on Tuesday evening. The program has not yet been completed, but to the present has cornet and violin solos and a number of vocal selections. Chief Morley has given his permission, and the firemen hope to make their concerts a feature in the future. A number of their friends are passing around the hat, with the intention of raising a sufficient amount to purchase a graphophone for the station. They think they will have no difficulty in raising the required amount.

RICH AND RACY.

And the Following Statements Are Plain Facts.

Advertisers will make note that the NEWS REVIEW is very much larger than any other daily paper published in East Liverpool. Better wages are paid workmen than any other paper, daily or weekly, in East Liverpool. More local matter is published each day in this paper than any other paper in the city. The bonafide paid circulation in East Liverpool is larger than that of any other paper in this city. The bonafide circulation of the NEWS REVIEW in Wellsville is far in excess of that of any other daily in East Liverpool. The NEWS REVIEW has no special delivery at Hard Scrabble Junction.

A SPECTACULAR PRODUCTION

To Be Given by Young People of the Presbyterian Church.

At a meeting held in the church last evening it was decided that the young people of the First Presbyterian church should give the spectacular cantata, the "Little Midgets," in the opera house June 4. The players, 100 in number, will be costumed and directed by a New York man of experience, and Professor Harper will train the soloists and choruses. It promises to be the most elaborate production ever given by church people in this city.

MAKING PROGRESS.

The Street Railway Will Be Completed In a Week.

Work on the Chester line has advanced so far that the opinion is given that in one week from Friday it will be completed. Holes are now being dug for the posts on this side of the river, and a large force of men on the other side are rapidly getting things in shape for operation. The cars have been ordered from a St. Louis firm, and are expected here this week. They are spacious and handsome.

MR. TAYLER FOR CHAIRMAN.

He May Get a Very Good Promotion.

A leading Ohio newspaper man in Washington is quoted as saying this of Hon. R. W. Tayler:

"If Mr. Reed appoints the committees this session, I think he will make Mr. Tayler chairman of the elections committee. He has done good work in the committee and deserves the position. It will be an honor worthily bestowed."

Interfered With Work.

Word has been received here that the high water has again interfered with work on the lock gates at Davis island dam. The work was almost finished, but had to be abandoned. Operations will be resumed as soon as the water goes down again.

A Good Day.

The pony worked in the local yards until 9 o'clock last night. Freight was heavy during the latter part of the day, and it is estimated over 100 cars were handled. At the local sheds 16 cars were loaded and shipped.

GOOD LECTURE COURSE.

It Will Be Conducted by the Library Committee.

The library directors met last evening and transacted business. As usual the financial question consumed a greater part of the time, and it was decided to pay all bills, as a neat balance would still be left in the treasury.

Commencing May 15 the library will be opened to the public from 7 to 10 o'clock in the evening during the summer months. The change was made necessary as people will not patronize the library in the afternoon during warm weather.

A committee composed of Chal Stewart, Charles Danberg and James N. Hanley were appointed to make arrangements for a series of entertainments to be given next winter. It is intended to hold a lecture course that has never been equalled in the city, and an effort will be made to secure such talent as Watterson, Talmage, Halstead and other speakers of national reputation.

AFTER TRAIN JUMPERS.

A Railroad Detective Was Looking Around.

Detective Woods, of the Cleveland and Pittsburg railroad, was in the city last evening after several train jumpers, who are known to make their headquarters around the station. In speaking to a reporter the officer said: "I am bound to break this habit of train jumping. I have devised a plan to put a stop to it and will execute it at once. I have my eye on several boys and they had better lay low."

FORGOT THE HANDLEBARS.

Thomas Wyllie as a Result Has a Broken Arm.

Thomas Wyllie yesterday afternoon received a new bicycle, and after putting it together went for a ride. He failed to adjust the handlebars, and after riding a short distance they slipped and he was thrown to the ground. When he gathered himself up it was found his arm was broken, and it will be several days before he takes another ride. The bicycle was not injured.

GOT A FORTUNE.

John Brighthouse Came Into His Inheritance.

Jasper Johnson this morning stated that his father-in-law, John Brighthouse, yesterday received a check for $12,000 from England, as his share in his father's estate, which was sold recently. It is known that Kaiser has been looking for a fortune for some time, but no one believed it would amount to a sum so large.

Right You Are, My Boy.

The EVENING NEWS REVIEW of East Liverpool shows evidence of prosperity. It has enlarged and changed its make-up from a seven-column folio to a five-column quarto, which will be appreciated by its readers. There is an evident intention upon the part of the management of the paper to give the people of the metropolis of Columbiana county a first class paper, and they ought to appreciate the effort.—Salem News.

On the River.

The river reached its highest mark yesterday, when 14.1 feet were registered. It is now falling slowly, and at present the marks show 13.4 feet.

Eleven tows went out yesterday. Ed Roberts, Mariner, Advance, Volunteer, James Moren, Charlie Brown, John W. Ailes, Clipper, Monterey, J. C. Risher, Raymond Horner, Kanawha. Passed up—Nellie Walton.

Abreast of the Times.

The East Liverpool NEWS REVIEW came out Saturday in an eight page, five column form. This change was deemed necessary on account of the increase in business. The NEWS REVIEW is ever awake and hustling to keep abreast of the times, giving its patrons the best of everything at a seasonable time.—Salem Herald.

A Company Meeting.

The stockholders of the Leidy Step Ladder company contemplate holding their first meeting next Monday. All the shares have been taken except three, and they will be placed in the hands of the company to dispose of as they wish. Operations will not be started for some time.

Old Paper.

There was a large amount of paper blowing around the Diamond and Fifth street this morning. Where it came from the authorities could not learn, but as it looked like old stuff, it is supposed to have blown from a nearby alley.

A Railroad Detective Was Looking Around.

Detective Woods, of the Cleveland and Pittsburg railroad, was in the city last evening after several train jumpers, who are known to make their headquarters around the station. In speaking to a reporter the officer said: "I am bound to break this habit of train jumping. I have devised a plan to put a stop to it and will execute it at once. I have my eye on several boys and they had better lay low."

FORGOT THE HANDLEBARS.

Thomas Wyllie as a Result Has a Broken Arm.

Thomas Wyllie yesterday afternoon received a new bicycle, and after putting it together went for a ride. He failed to adjust the handlebars, and after riding a short distance they slipped and he was thrown to the ground. When he gathered himself up it was found his arm was broken, and it will be several days before he takes another ride. The bicycle was not injured.

GOT A FORTUNE.

John Brighthouse Came Into His Inheritance.

Jasper Johnson this morning stated that his father-in-law, John Brighthouse, yesterday received a check for $12,000 from England, as his share in his father's estate, which was sold recently. It is known that Kaiser has been looking for a fortune for some time, but no one believed it would amount to a sum so large.

Right You Are, My Boy.

THE EVENING NEWS REVIEW of East Liverpool shows evidence of prosperity. It has enlarged and changed its makeup from a seven-column folio to a five-column quarto, which will be appreciated by its readers. There is an evident intention upon the part of the management of the paper to give the people of the metropolis of Columbiana county a first class paper, and they ought to appreciate the effort.—Salem News.

On the River.

The river reached its highest mark yesterday, when 14.1 feet were registered. It is now falling slowly, and at present the marks show 13.4 feet.

Eleven tows went out yesterday. Ed Roberts, Mariner, Advance, Volunteer, James Moren, Charlie Brown, John W. Ailes, Clipper, Monterey, J. C. Risher, Raymond Horner, Kanawha. Passed up—Nellie Walton.

Abreast of the Times.

The East Liverpool NEWS REVIEW came out Saturday in an eight page, five column form. This change was deemed necessary on account of the increase in business. The NEWS REVIEW is ever awake and hustling to keep abreast of the times, giving its patrons the best of everything at a seasonable time.—Salem Herald.

A Company Meeting.

The stockholders of the Leidy Step Ladder company contemplate holding their first meeting next Monday. All the shares have been taken except three, and they will be placed in the hands of the company to dispose of as they wish. Operations will not be started for some time.

Old Paper.

There was a large amount of paper blowing around the Diamond and Fifth street this morning. Where it came from the authorities could not learn, but as it looked like old stuff, it is supposed to have blown from a nearby alley.

THE POTTERS WON

Radical Changes In the New Crockery Schedule.

HON. R. W. TAYLER'S VIEW

He is Not Yet Able to State the Exact Result

SO FAR AS BENEFIT IS INVOLVED

It Will Require the Work of an Expert to Show That Specific Duties as Embodied in the New Bill Are Better or Worse Than the Old Rate of the McKinley Bill or That of the Dingley Measure—The Importers Fought Against Compound Duties, and Were Defeated.

The senate finance committee used its scissors on the crockery schedule of the tariff bill, and some of the best informed potters in the country are at a loss to know whether they won or lost by the cutting, but they are confident that in one sense they won, since every force at the command of the importers was brought to bear against compound duties, and compound duties are embodied in the bill.

The paragraph of the House bill which covers china, porcelain, earthen, stone, and puts the decorated at 60 per cent and plain at 55 was stricken out, and this inserted:

"Earthen, stone and crockery ware, and manufactures of which these substances, or either of them, is the component material of chief value, not specifically provided for in this act, including plaques, ornaments, etc., three-fourths of 1 cent per pound and 20 per cent ad valorem; if printed in one color only and not gilded, 1 cent per pound and 20 per cent ad valorem; if tinted, stained, enameled, gilded, printed and gilded, printed and filled, or transferred or decorated by any mechanical process, 1 3-4 cents per pound and 25 per cent ad valorem; if hand-painted, printed in gold or otherwise ornamented or decorated in any manner not herein specifically provided for, 50 per cent ad valorem, provided that none of the articles enumerated in this paragraph shall pay a less rate of duty than 45 per cent ad valorem; and provided further, that the suitable weight of the articles provided for in this paragraph shall be their gross weight in packed condition as imported, including the weight of crates, cases, boxes and other coverings and packing material."

The paragraph of the house bill rating all other china, etc., ornamented, at 60 per cent ad valorem, and not ornamented at 55 per cent, is also stricken out and replaced by the following:

"China, porcelain, parian and bisque ware, and manufactures of which these substances, or either of them, is the component material of chief value, not specifically provided for in this act, including plaques, etc., 1 1/2 cents per pound and 25 per cent ad valorem; if printed or colored and not gilded, 2 1/4 cents per pound and 25 per cent ad valorem, if painted, stained, enameled, gilded, printed and filled or transferred or decorated by any mechanical process, 2 1/2 cents per pound and 30 per cent ad valorem; if hand-painted, painted in gold, raised gold or otherwise decorated in any manner not herein otherwise especially provided for, 55 per cent ad valorem; provided that none of the articles enumerated in this paragraph shall pay a less rate of duty than 50 per cent ad valorem; and provided further, that the dutiable weight of the articles provided for in this paragraph shall be their gross weight in packed condition as imported, including the weight of the crates, etc."

Gray earthenware and salt-glazed stoneware are added to the kinds of undecorated earthenware dutiable at 25 per cent ad valorem, and the item "Rockingham earthenware, 40 per cent ad valorem," of the house bill is stricken out.

Hon. R. W. Tayler, who is in Lisbon looking after private affairs, was interviewed by the NEWS REVIEW this morning. He said:

"The potters wanted compound duties, and so far as that is concerned they have won; but compound duties, like all other duties, can be made so light as to afford no protection. In principle they have the victory, but it will require some careful calculating before it is really learned whether the compound duties are of as much service as the schedule of the House bill. On this depends whether the reported schedule will be a part of the bill when it is passed. The added rate that these duties shall not go below a certain per cent ad valorem is of course nothing but a precaution to keep the duty above a given point."

"It is not in my opinion as good as the old McKinley bill," said Colonel Taylor. "It is too early to state exactly what the duty amounts to, but it will equal 35 and 40 per cent ad valorem. It is not as high a compound duty as it should be."

This opinion was echoed by other manufacturers in the city, the general opinion being that the ad valorem duties of the House bill would do the industry more good. It will require time to find just what the schedule means.

The section of the new bill which takes away the duty on Rockingham was not relished by the concerns making that grade of ware. It came to them like a thunderbolt from a clear sky, and they could not understand it. Under the Wilson bill they have 20 per cent, and it was hard for them to believe that a protective measure would throw them out entirely. A leading manufacturer said that with no tariff they would be shut out, and all concerns making Rockingham would have to turn their attention to white ware if they wanted to stay in the business.

MAY WANT MECHANICS

General Thomas Council Is Seriously Thinking

OF INVITING THE STATE BODY

To Hold Its Convention in This City Next Year—Mt. Vernon Will Entertain Them This Month—A Meeting Will Be Held to Discuss It Tonight.

General Thomas council, American Mechanics, will hold an important meeting tomorrow evening. It is for the purpose of considering the advisability of inviting the state council to hold its session next year in this place.

The project has been under advisement for quite a while, and some members of the council enthusiastically support it. The hospitality of Liverpool is well known throughout the state, and the opinion prevails that the meeting could be secured without a great deal of difficulty, many Mechanics in other cities being only too willing to spend a few days here. It will cost a considerable amount of money to decorate the city in the proper manner, and every Mechanic would be compelled to work hard to make the meeting a success, but there are very good reasons for believing that it would be gladly done if the meeting comes here.

Thomas Pickal said today that there was no doubt about the willingness of the state council to come here. It was only a question of whether the city can provide the required accommodations. There are 150 members in the council without counting the state officers, and they are usually well entertained when they visit a town.

The question will be definitely settled tomorrow night, and every member of the council is expected to be present. Members of the council would not venture an opinion to day as to whether the action would result in an invitation to the state body. They meet this year at Mt. Vernon.

A PAIR OF THEM

Settled Up Their Accounts With the Mayor.

Joe Green came to the mayor's office yesterday and had George Maul arrested on a charge of assault and battery. Maul plead guilty, and was fined $9.60, which he paid.

A man who said he had no name was brought to the front office last night by Officer Terrence and a charge of drunkenness placed against him. Later the gentleman was found to be a Mr. Dietz, of Gardendale. He was taxed $6.60, and is still in.

GOOD HOMES.

Mr. Beerbock Says There Are No Finer in the Country.

F. H. Beerbock, a Chicago real estate man, who has for a number of years represented land companies and has laid out some of the finest parks in the country, is in the city today. In conversation with a well-known gentleman he expressed surprise at the property of East Liverpool, and stated that the working people of this city had better homes than the working people in any city of this size in the United States.

BURNED ALMOST TO DEATH

The Child Lived to Die of the Measles.

The 18-month-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Reddy, of Jethro hollow, died yesterday from an attack of measles. It will be remembered the child was severely burned some months ago, and it was thought it could not live, but it recovered only to succumb to the measles. The funeral will take place tomorrow. Interment will be made at the Catholic cemetery.

From the customers' standpoint that's the only right way to do business. Suppose we had the merchandise to buy, why should we favor one store more than another? What would we expect in return for our patronage? How could our confidence be best gained? These are questions we are constantly asking ourselves, we're trying to answer them over our counters in a way that will gain your business confidence and esteem.

Reliable goods, reasonable prices, courtesy, careful attention to your every buying need are some of the ways by which we hope to extend and increase our trade.

Good Gloves

Have sold more kid gloves this spring than ever before. The reason is, we think because people can rely on our goods, as, when we buy a glove to retail at any particular price our aim is to get the best article that can be sold for that price.

Our line of dollar gloves is especially strong. It includes four button in white, cream, tan, brown, red, and black with white stitching.

A new thing for Saturday in gloves—black, with green, red or purple embroidery; price $1.25. Chamois gloves, good quality, 89c.

Wrappers.

Just new. Our 75c wrapper we think cannot be beaten. A good assortment of colors and all sizes. Better ones at $1, and at $1 25 we have a home made wrapper, best calico, good muslin lining, elastic in sleeves at wrist, extra wide skirts, and cheaper than you can make them yourself, and just as well made as any one can make them. If in need of wrappers investigate and we think we can convince you that we have what you want in this line.

Shirt Waists.

More styles, better values, larger stock, and most complete selection than we've ever offered. We believe we have what you want in shirt waists. At least it will pay you to look through our stock before buying, for whether you want a cheap everyday waist or a dress waist we have it. They are made of organdie, dimity, lawr, percale, and other materials suited for the purpose. Prices all the way from 50c to $3.50. New line of misses shirt waists. Three prices—50c, $1 and $1.25.

Ladies' Silk Waists.

A new lot of changeable glace silk, all colors, all sizes, at $2.50. You wonder how they can be produced so cheaply. India silk shirt waists, in plain black and plain blue, at $3 75.

Plain black India silk shirt waists; also shirt waists of India silk, green blue and plain colors, with large white dots, and changeable novelty silk dress waists at $5. These are good values and worthy of your attention.

THUMB NAIL SKETCHES OF A WITTY AND GRACIOUS PEOPLE.

The Lazy and Picturesque Life of the Andalusians—Making Love Through Barred Windows—A Taberna Where the Darker Side of Life Is Displayed.

Wandering home through the dark, winding byways, you pass cloaked figures, whispering at the iron bound windows. They are the lovers of Seville, pelando la pava (plucking the turkey), as they call it. With the lattice slightly open, the fair Sevillana sits in her darkened chamber talking in whispered tones to the gallant without. The old folks, weary of the task of chaperonage, after locking the daughter in a room barred like a prison cell, have gone to bed, and for hours, sometimes the entire night, the affianced lovers look through the grating into each other's eyes and whisper the nothings of love. It would seem cold comfort to a northern swain, but the Spaniards say the iron bars are a necessary evil there in Spain. In Spain there are life and color and picturesqueness everywhere, and you think the Spaniard was born to be an artist's model.

In the maze of tortuous streets about the market one sees something of the life of the people. There the white-washed houses are outlined against the brilliant sky in rambling perspective, and the graceful tower of some parish church, its brown walls moss grown, its bright tiles shining, rise sharp and clear into the blue above. Dark maidens with glossy hair and warm color in their cheeks gaze idly from the miradores above upon the countless people in the streets below.

The cobbler hammers and stitches in his smoky little shop without window or door, glasses click in the bodega, sleek cows with mournful eyes and tinkling bells stand silently chewing their cud in the milkman's stalls, and the dainty feet of shaggy donkeys patter on the cobble stones as the patient little beasts, beneath their panniers of straw or charcoal, thread their way through the crowd. You wander along, picking your way through the good natured assemblage, until you reach some little plaza with its church, where beggars sun themselves upon the flagstones, and the puestos, or booths of the street peddlers, with graceful, colored awnings, are scattered picturesquely about the pavement. There the dazzling sunlight casts fantastic shadows on the yellow and blue walls of the houses, multicolored pots or festoons of cotton plants hang in the dingy shops, gallardos—dandies of the street—gossip in groups or ogle the passing maidens, dogs snooze in sunny spots and crowds of idlers cluster about some barrel organ or blind guitarist. There is a booth near by where a bronze skinned gypsy is cooking molletes calentitos, a sort of greasy flour cake fried in oil, and a wine puesto with its earthen jars, and huge bottles of red and yellow wine, and there vagos loiter to eat and drink.

One can linger for hours in the streets of Seville, watching the people and talking with them, too, for the Andalusian of the lower classes is the best of fellows. There is a democratic freedom in his manner, at once respectful and cordial, which is unlike the obsequiousness or boorishness of the common people of other countries. He is slow and even lazy, but he commands respect, and nowhere can one meet such civility and heartiness as is shown by the Andalusian peasant. But you must unbend and meet him half way. He does not like Saxon stiffness, and a cordial word or the offer of a cigarette will accomplish more than a handful of silver.

When you go into a bodega of the people where aguardiente is sold at a cent a glass, the habitués all greet you with a word of welcome, and the bar-keeper serves his liquor with a courtliness which is Chesterfieldian. They are rough places, those common taverns. There is one in particular, across the river in Triana, where the toughs of Seville—the matones, they are called—gather to drink and quarrel. They say that every Sevillian who is spoiling for a fight goes there, and many are the cutting affrays in which navajos are drawn. With mantas wrapped about the left arm, the duellists crouch and slowly follow each other around, watching the opportunity for the fatal spring, just as they do in Carmen. This taberna of the bullies is a low, dingy place, spanned by high beams blackened by ages of cigarettes and dirt. It is open to the street on two sides, and supporting the corner beams is an old Roman column which looks as though it may have been standing since the time of Trajan. The floor is of dirt, and in one corner are a low table and three or four cane seated chairs. There are dirty bottles on the shelves and coarse prints of bullfighters on the walls. Behind the bar is the keeper of the resort, a low browed ruffian, with little weasel eyes, set close together and a knife slash across his unshaven cheek. He looks a prince of cut-throats, but even he has a kindly greeting and a civil word, as have his customers who lean upon the bar. But the honest workman out for a holiday with his best girl or the bourgeois and his friends picnicking in the environs under the shade of olive trees, are really more interesting. These true Andalusians will always welcome a stranger, they will always share their sour wine and sweet cakes, and the bright eyed girls of the party will dance the graceful Sevillana to the time of castanets, and if you speak Spanish you may chat with them all and feel when you leave that you have met real friends. There are no people so friendly and witty and gracious as the Andalusians.—Cosmopolitan.

A SEA ABOVE THE CLOUDS.

Extraordinary Superstition Once Prevalent in England.

The curious superstition that there is an ocean above the clouds is illustrated by the following strange story by an old English writer: "One Sunday the people of a certain village were coming out of church on a thick, cloudy day, when they saw the anchor of a ship hooked to one of the tombstones—the table, which was tightly stretched, hanging down from the air. The people were astonished, and while they were consulting about it suddenly they saw the rope move as though some one labored to pull up the anchor. The anchor, however, still held fast by the stone, and a great noise was heard in the air, like the shouting of sailors. Presently a sailor was seen sliding down the cable for the purpose of unfixing the anchor. When he had just loosened it, the villagers seized hold of him, and while in their hands he quickly died, just as though he had been drowned.

"About an hour after the sailors above, hearing no more of their comrade, cut the cable and sailed away. In memory of this extraordinary event the people of the village made the hinges of the church doors out of the iron of the anchor." It is further stated that these hinges "are still to be seen there," a bit of evidence much like Munchausen's rope wherewith he once climbed to the moon. If you doubted the story, you were confronted with the rope.

There is another queer tale about this aerial ocean. "A merchant of Bristol," it is said, "set sail with his cargo for Ireland. Some time after, while his family were at supper, a knife suddenly fell in through a window on the table. When the merchant returned and saw the knife, he declared it to be his own and said that on such a day, at such an hour, while sailing in an unknown part of the sea, he dropped the knife overboard, and the day and the hour were found to be exactly the time when it fell through the window." All of which was once implicitly believed by many and regarded as incontrovertible proof of the existence of a sea above the sky. One is at a loss to conjecture how that "unknown part of the sea" connected with the rest of it. A physical geography showing this would be no small curiosity.—Boston Post.

SILKWORMS OF LEBANON.

How They Are Cultivated in the Mountains of Tripoli.

Harry Fenn, the artist, has written a paper, entitled "Silk and Cedars," for St. Nicholas, describing his visit to the famous mountains of Lebanon. Concerning the silk industry, which plays such an important part in the lives of the natives, Mr. Fenn says: As the time approaches for the silkworm to hatch out the egg the family move out of the house and camp under the trees, giving up the entire establishment to the worms, after having placed the eggs on shelves made of a reedlike bamboo. At first the young worms are fed on finely chopped leaves, but as they grow larger the leaves need only be broken in two. The people have to feed and watch the worms night and day, or they wander in search of food and get lost, and in the silence of the night the sound of the worms feeding is like a gently falling rain.

The worms fast three or four times during this period, and about 24 hours is the length of each fast. A curious feature about their fast is their posture. They assume the attitude of a cobra snake about to strike and remain rigidly fixed in that position for the entire period. When they are ready to spin, small branches are placed on the shelves, and as the cocoons are formed upon them the dead twigs seem to bear golden fruit. When the worms get through that part of the business, the neighbors are called in—something as to an old fashioned New England apple paring bee. They call it "qtat" in Arabic—that is "picking," and soon you see piles of pale green, pure white and golden yellow cocoons heaped upon the floor. Later they may be spun into hanks, but usually the cocoons are sent down the mountains to Tripoli or Damascus, and after their 30 or 40 days of toil they, too, often have to sell the produce for next to nothing, as the Chinese are always ready to undersell them.

Another curious use Mr. Silkworm is put to is to soak him in vinegar for some hours, after which he is drawn out into so called "catgut" to make snells or leaders for fishhooks.

LANGUAGE OF CRIME.

THE ARGOT OF PARIS AND THE "PAT-TUR" OF LONDON.

Thieves Have Special Words to Express Stealing of Every Kind—Material Changes Take Place Every Two or Three Years.

The language of criminals—the argot of Paris, the "patter" of London—has been carefully investigated by numerous writers, with very variant results.

Its origin is difficult to explain. Criminals, say many authors, have found it necessary to adopt a technical language for their own protection, that they may be able to converse in public without being understood. "They have been forced to do this and have made a language as sinister and as vile as themselves." This theory cannot be admitted. Certainly the argot is sinister and vile and thoroughly representative of the class that uses it, but further than this we cannot go.

The theory that the use of this dialect is of any assistance to the criminal is inadmissible. Most policemen and all prison officers know this slang, sometimes better than the thieves. To speak it in the hearing of a detective is to invite arrest; to speak it in the presence of the general public would arouse suspicion and attract attention—two things which are especially to be avoided. Why, then, does it exist? Dr. Laurent of the Sante prison in Paris has given an explanation which has at least nothing to contradict it: The persons engaged in every trade form a species of dialect or technical phraseology which is spoken and understood only by themselves. Criminals, who practice a trade as old as any, have gradually acquired a language more adapted to their wants, more in keeping with their ideas and thoughts. Miserable, heartless, engaged in a perpetual struggle against morality, law and decency, they have acquired a language of debased words and cynical metaphors, a language of abbreviated expressions and obscene synonyms.

This dialect has mutilated the mother tongue. It has also borrowed liberally from other languages, but without method or etymology. Criminals are not grammarians. Neither are they linguists, and at first sight it would seem strange that they should import words from other countries. We will find, however, that in any prison the percentage of inmates of foreign birth will be large. In America it is about 15 per cent. A foreign expression which seems apt or an improvement on the one in present use is rapidly diffused through the prison. In cases where it is especially descriptive it may become permanent, but its life is usually short. The argot of the crime class changes materially every two or three years. It is ephemeral, as shifting as its users. Victor Hugo exaggerates only slightly when he says, "The argot changes more in ten years than the language does in ten centuries." Thus in the last three years there have been three different terms for watch—"super," "thimble" and "yellow and white"—each of which was in its turn the only one used.

Every writer on the subject has noticed that the argot is rich in expressions to denote certain common actions. This is a peculiarity shared by all primitive languages, the only difference being in the selection of the common acts. Thus in Sanskrit there are nearly 100 roots which express the idea of killing or wounding, without counting secondary derivations. Some of these roots are embodied in our language today. In the dialect of the thieves there are nearly 100 expressions to signify theft. It was necessary for the pickpocket to describe the various pockets in a man's clothing and in a woman's dress. The average man does not often need to specify a particular pocket. When he does, he lays his hand on it to assist the poverty of his language. The thief has a separate name for each separate pocket.

But in spite of this richness in synonyms, which is in itself a marked sign of degeneracy, for the tendency of a language is to eliminate its synonyms, giving to each a different shade of meaning, the argot is a poor language. It has not a single expression for abstract emotion. To attempt to render a philosophic thought, a moral emotion, a synthetic or aesthetic idea into the dialect of the thief would be like attempting to translate "electricity" or "steam engine" into Latin. It is impossible because the words do not exist. They are not needed. The criminal has no more conception of abstract emotion than a blind man has of color.

A fact which does not seem to ally the argot to a primitive language is its ability to form additional words from its own resources, a power of self development which we find in the old Anglo-Saxon, and especially in the German of today. This trait is the more striking as it seems in direct contradiction to the impotence of the English language in this respect. The English has little formative power. It relies on the Greek and Latin languages for the extension of its vocabulary.—A. T. B. Crofton in Popular Science Monthly.

HIRAM DART'S REFUSAL.

Why He Did Not Marry the Charming Widow Breese.

When old Hiram Dart was in his seventy-fifth year, the faithful old wife who had been his companion for a full half century, sickened and died, and, to the surprise and amusement of his rural neighbors, old Hiram set forth in search of another wife before Hannah, his first spouse, had been six weeks in her grave.

He made no secret of the fact that he was "in the market" and seemed surprised that the bidders were so few. He attributed this fact to the general lack of taste and judgment in the "wimmen folks" of the present day.

"They're a finicky lot anyhow," said old Hiram, "an it comes o' this fool new wimmen idee."

One day old Hiram drove by a neighbor's house all "rigged up" in his Sunday best and with a blue satin necktie forming a marked contrast to the big red geranium in his buttonhole. He tarried for a moment at his neighbor's gate and frankly confessed that he was "goin a sparkin'."

The object of this amatory visitation was the Widow Breese, who lived "over Hebron way," and with whom old Hiram was wholly unacquainted. Some one had, in a spirit of either malice or mischief, made old Hiram believe that the Widow Breese, a robust, well to do woman of about 60, would be inclined to look with favor on Hiram's suit.

"An it won't be no harm done to go an see her anyway," said Hiram, as he drove away.

It was nearly dark when Hiram reappeared, far less buoyant than when he went away. His neighbor was on the lookout, and, hailing the old man, he said:

"Well, Uncle Hiram, did the Widow Breese refuse you?"

"Not much she didn't," retorted Hiram spiritedly. "I refused her."

"You refused her? Why, what do you mean, Uncle Hiram?"

"Mean jess what I say. I refused the old—old—cattymount!"

"Why, Uncle Hiram, is that a respectful way to speak about a lady?"

"Did Mrs. Breese do that?"

"She jess did. I guess she'd got wind that I was comin, for I'd hardly interdoosed myself an began to state my bizness when she flew at me with a broomstick an drenched me with hot water an sicked her dawg on me an jawed the worst I ever heerd. I jess waited till she got through, an then I up an told her p'int blank that I wouldn't have her if she was the last woman on top of the earth. Yes, sir; I refused her jess that p'int blank."—Detroit Free Press.

The English Municipal Service.

Compared with other professions in England, the municipal service is on the whole fairly well paid. Salaries of town clerks range from £300 in towns of a population of 30,000 to £1,750 paid by Manchester, which has a population of 500,000, while municipal engineers are paid all the way up from £300 in towns of 20,000 to £1,000 a year paid by each of the municipalities of Manchester, Liverpool and Newcastle.

For these salaries the councils usually demand all the time of their servants. A lawyer or an engineer may do better as a private practitioner, but in the municipal service he is sure of his position and his pay, and it will be his own fault if he has not so organized his office and trained assistants that he can hold on to his position well on into an old age. Advancing years may tell against a man for appointment to a municipal office, but old age is seldom made the excuse for getting rid of a town clerk or a municipal engineer. Most of them die in harness, drawing full pay.

The subordinate clerkships under the municipalities are not much better paid than clerkships in law and mercantile offices. The reason why these positions are prized is that in such a position a man regards himself as placed for life and is consequently in the enjoyment of that feeling of settlement and that absence of worry as to the future which are so dear to middle class Englishmen. Excellent men of their class hold these positions. Their abilities and their respectability would bring them the same salaries elsewhere, minus only the fixity of tenure which attaches to all grades of the municipal service. These subordinates, like their superiors in the paid municipal service, vote at all elections like other citizens. They never attempt to conceal how they vote, but the recurring elections give rise to no pleasurable expectations or disturbing apprehensions of any kind on their part. They are never active in the municipal campaigns and would as soon expect to encounter a highwayman in the town as a collector seeking contributions to a campaign fund.—Harper's Weekly.

A SEA ABOVE THE CLOUDS.

Extraordinary Superstition Once Prevalent in England.

"About an hour after the sailors above, hearing no more of their comrade, cut the cable and sailed away. It is further stated that these hinges "are still to be seen there," a bit of evidence much like Munchausen's rope wherewith he once climbed to the moon. If you doubted the story, you were confronted with the rope.

There is another queer tale about this aerial ocean. "A merchant of Bristol," it is said, "set sail with his cargo for Ireland. LANGUAGE OF CRIME.

THE ARGOT OF PARIS AND THE "PATTER" OF LONDON.

Thieves Have Special Words to Express Stealing of Every Kind—Material Changes Take Place Every Two or Three Years.

The average man does not often need to specify a particular pocket. When he does, he lays his hand on it to assist the poverty of his language. The thief has a separate name for each separate pocket.

But in spite of this richness in synonyms, which is in itself a marked sign of degeneracy, for the tendency of a language is to eliminate its synonyms, giving to each a different shade of meaning, the argot is a poor language. It has not a single expression for abstract emotion. To attempt to render a philosophic thought, a moral emotion, a synthetic or aesthetic idea into the dialect of the thief would be like attempting to translate "electricity" or "steam engine" into Latin. It is impossible because the words do not exist. They are not needed. The criminal has no more conception of abstract emotion than a blind man has of color.

A fact which does not seem to ally the argot to a primitive language is its ability to form additional words from its own resources, a power of self development which we find in the old Anglo-Saxon, and especially in the German of today. This trait is the more striking as it seems in direct contradiction to the impotence of the English language in this respect. The English has little formative power. It relies on the Greek and Latin languages for the extension of its vocabulary.—A. T. B. Crofton in Popular Science Monthly.

HIRAM DART'S REFUSAL.

Why He Did Not Marry the Charming Widow Breese.

When old Hiram Dart was in his seventy-fifth year, the faithful old wife who had been his companion for a full half century, sickened and died, and, to the surprise and amusement of his rural neighbors, old Hiram set forth in search of another wife before Hannah, his first spouse, had been six weeks in her grave.

He made no secret of the fact that he was "in the market" and seemed surprised that the bidders were so few. He attributed this fact to the general lack of taste and judgment in the "wimmen folks" of the present day.

One day old Hiram drove by a neighbor's house all "rigged up" in his Sunday best and with a blue satin necktie forming a marked contrast to the big red geranium in his buttonhole. He tarried for a moment at his neighbor's gate and frankly confessed that he was "goin a sparkin'."

The object of this amatory visitation was the Widow Breese, who lived "over Hebron way," and with whom old Hiram was wholly unacquainted. Some one had, in a spirit of either malice or mischief, made old Hiram believe that the Widow Breese, a robust, well to do woman of about 60, would be inclined to look with favor on Hiram's suit.

"An it wcn't be no harm done to go an see her anyway," said Hiram, as he drove away.

It was nearly dark when Hiram reappeared, far less buoyant than when he went away. His neighbor was on the lookout, and, hailing the old man, he said:

"Well, Uncle Hiram, did the Widow Breese refuse you?"

"Mean jess what I say. I refused the old—old—cattymount!"

"Why, Uncle Hiram, is that a respectful way to speak about a lady?"

"Did Mrs. Breese do that?"

"She jest did. I guess she'd got wind that I was comin, for I'd hardly interdoosed myself an began to state my bizness when she flew at me with a broomstick an drenched me with hot water an sicked her dawg on me an jawed the worst I ever heerd. I jess waited till she got through, an then I up an told her p'int blank that I wouldn't have her if she was the last woman on top of the earth. Yes, sir; I refused her jest that p'int blank."—Detroit Free Press.

The English Municipal Service.

Compared with other professions in England, the municipal service is on the whole fairly well paid. Salaries of town clerks range from £300 in towns of a population of 30,000 to £1,750 paid by Manchester, which has a population of 500,000, while municipal engineers are paid all the way up from £300 in towns of 20,000 to £1,000 a year paid by each of the municipalities of Manchester, Liverpool and Newcastle.

For these salaries the councils usually demand all the time of their servants. A lawyer or an engineer may do better as a private practitioner, but in the municipal service he is sure of his position and his pay, and it will be his own fault if he has not so organized his office and trained assistants that he can hold on to his position well on into an old age. Advancing years may tell against a man for appointment to a municipal office, but old age is seldom made the excuse for getting rid of a town clerk or a municipal engineer. Most of them die in harness, drawing full pay.

The subordinate clerkships under the municipalities are not much better paid than clerkships in law and mercantile offices. The reason why these positions are prized is that in such a position a man regards himself as placed for life and is consequently in the enjoyment of that feeling of settlement and that absence of worry as to the future which are so dear to middle class Englishmen. Excellent men of their class hold these positions. Their abilities and their respectability would bring them the same salaries elsewhere, minus only the fixity of tenure which attaches to all grades of the municipal service. These subordinates, like their superiors in the paid municipal service, vote at all elections like other citizens. They never attempt to conceal how they vote, but the recurring elections give rise to no pleasurable expectations or disturbing apprehensions of any kind on their part. They are never active in the municipal campaigns and would as soon expect to encounter a highwayman in the town as a collector or seeking contributions to a campaign fund.—Harper's Weekly.

BURNS AND HIS MARY.

He sang of friendship and duty
And manhood all creeds above,
Of the dear, green earth in her beauty
And the dewy glory of love.
But the sweetest, tenderest chord he gave
Was the requiem poured o'er his lost love's grave.

Then life was but futile longing
And earth but a beautiful tomb,
But songs through the silence were
thrilling,
And glory dwelt in the gloom,
And sorrow, the harper skilled and strong,
From the breaking heart drew its sweetest song.

When thy grief had heavenward striven
In melody trembling to prayer,
Did thy Mary remember in heaven
Her love by the braes of Ayr?
We know not, but earth that heard thee
sing
Must cherish thy song to her latest spring.

Deep heart, so lavish in loving!
Oh, wayward and broken heart!
As safe from our shadow reproving
As deaf to our praise thou art.
Yet thy song shall thrill us while love
shall last

HER REFORMED DIET.

Mrs. Newlight Makes a Series of Astonishing Discoveries.

"It's just awful how criminally ignorant I've been regarding our food," said Mrs. Newlight to her husband the other day. "I can never be thankful enough that I joined Professor Scarem's class in domestic science. My! It's a wonder we're not all dead, ignorant as I've been. There's one thing sure, George Newlight—there'll be no more tomatoes on my table."

"Why?"

"Because Professor Scarem explained to us today how tomatoes cause a marked arrest of vital activity in those who eat them, and he proved that the acid of tomatoes acts almost like a poison on the membrane of the stomach. Then I'm done with any berries that have seeds in on my table."

"I'd like to know why?"

"You wouldn't ask if you'd heard the professor's talk on appendicitis and its cause. A single dish of raspberries or strawberries may bring on that awful trouble. It's fearful to think of the risks people will run just to gratify the palate.
And here we've always allowed our children to have sugar and cream on their oatmeal!"

"What of it?"

"Well, you'd say 'What of it?' if you could hear the professor explain how the combination of oatmeal and cream and sugar causes dreadful gases to arise in the stomach and utterly retards digestion. I've not the slightest doubt that the awful spasm our little Mamie had last year was due entirely to this cause.
Then there's bananas. Why, George Newlight, they're simply rank poison!
And you'll get no more white bread at my table."

"Why not?"

"Because there's no more nutrition in it than there would be in bread made out of pure starch. Every bit of the nutritive element has been refined out of it. It makes those who eat it thin blooded."

"Do I look thin blooded or as if I lacked nutrition?" asked Newlight, who weighs 190.

"That doesn't signify. You don't know what day you'll begin to break down under such bread. We'll have nothing but graham or whole wheat flour hereafter. And I've done with coffee too. If you could see and hear Professor Scarem demonstrate just how poisonous it is to the whole human system you'd shun it as you shun opium.
He says that cocoa shells is the only real safe warm drink."

"I'd as soon drink dishwater," said Newlight.

"You'd better drink dishwater than your poisonous coffee. If you'd only take a little time to study domestic science and look into this food business a little, it would be a good thing for your health and the health of your family.
There's a lot more things we've been jeopardizing our lives by eating in our criminal ignorance, and I'm going to cut all of them off our list."

And she did, which is the reason that Newlight is taking most of his meals down town at present.—Detroit Free Press.

Washington Puzzles Him.

"I have found my way across pathless prairies where I had never been before, and even through the tangled mazes of a chaparral thicket, without getting lost, but I never come to a strange city without getting absolutely bewildered," said Mr. H. M. Barker of New Mexico.

"I have been to Washington at least a dozen times in the past three years, and yet it is just as strange to me now, after a sojourn of two weeks, as it was the first time I ever set foot in the district.
If I get one block away from my hotel I lose my reckoning, and I find myself wondering continually whether I am going toward the capitol or in the direction of the treasury. I get sore with myself for being so slow to find my bearings, but I hear other men owning up to the same difficulty. It certainly is queer that there should be such a difference between people, for I know plenty of men that can go anywhere they choose in a city a few hours after landing in it, but take them out into the country, and they would get lost like the babes in the woods."—Washington Post.

A Remarkable Portrait.

The pope has received, through the Countess Maria Festetics, maid of honor to the empress of Austria, a somewhat remarkable portrait of the emperor Francis Joseph. It is wrought in silk and cotton, and its production involved an enormous amount of labor and expense, the effect of light and shade being produced by only two colors.

The factory from which it comes is the famous one of Wernstadt, in Bohemia.
The portrait, which Leo XIII. is having placed in his library, received a gold medal at the Chicago World's fair.

BEAUTIFUL FLORENCE.

A City Praised For Its Good Manners and Harmonious Surroundings.

If I wished to teach an awkward child, youth or girl good manners by example, I should send him or her to Florence, says a writer to Truth (London). There may be ill mannered persons there, but I never saw one. Poor people behave with the suave dignity which used in England to stamp the lady or gentleman. Most persons are brainy, but cleverness is not eager to shine. It is very subdued and more oily than corrosive. The charm of Florence steals on one like the wit of its clever inhabitants. The senses are soothed in all directions by harmonious manners and objects. Architects understood chiaroscuro not less than the great painters and sculptors. One never wearies of the streets and public buildings. Their aspects constantly and strongly vary, according to the course of the sun. Lights and shades at 10 in the forenoon are wholly different from what they will be at 4 in the afternoon. The Florentine women have interesting though not beautiful faces. But one has only to walk into the market to see country girls who would have done for models for Raphael's Virgin mothers. One is struck in the galleries with the nice judgment with which the pictures are hung. What more lofty in sentiment than the tomb of Lorenzo de' Medici?
Loftiness is an attribute of Florentine architecture, palatial or domestic. The doors of private houses might pass in England for portals. One feels them to be great facts in their way.

Talking of harmonious things reminds me of the Boboli gardens. Is there a spot in England, the land of stately and lovely seats, that at all approaches them? In situation and tranquil, generous loveliness I can only think of one—the Duke of Northumberland's terraced gardens at his place in Surrey. The Boboli Eden, where the Prince and Princess of Naples still court seclusion, has the advantage over the Surrey paradise of being under a revealing sky. Every shade of greenery, every floral hue, is well brought out. One sees the faultless texture of statues and fountains mellowed by time. In so strong a light a well ordered design is required, and one has it. The marbles are the climax. They are to the horticultural beauties as brilliants to the lace and satin of a fine woman's dress.
Florence is not what it was in the grand ducal days. Still, it retains the air of a capital with a long and illustrious history. The ladies' dresses are only provincial when measured by the Paris standard, to which Italian women above the peasant class generally submit—more's the pity. Paris fashions only suit Frenchwomen, unless applied by French hairdressers and femmes de chambre. An English or a German face under a Paris hat or bonnet is at a dreadful disadvantage if the hair has not been first dressed by a French artiste capillaire. He places the hat, through the medium of the hair, in harmonious relation with the face. I fancy these French coiffeurs are not much employed by Italian ladies.

Blue White Prints.

Paper coated with an emulsion, which when printed and toned gives a clear white with a bluish tint in the high lights, may be bought of dealers in photographic materials. The paper is marked "Pense," which is a mistake, as the correct spelling is "pensee." This blue tone may be obtained on aristocratic paper by toning the prints in a separate bath and putting a few drops of aniline blue in the fixing bath. Have the tint rather deep, and when the prints are fixed the whites and high lights will have a clear blue tone. If the picture is a landscape with plenty of clouds in the sky the effect is almost as if the sky had been tinted.

Many spots both on prints and negatives are due to the dishes used not having been properly cleansed. The trays should be wiped out with a very soft cloth or sponge, and once in a while washed with a little alcohol.

A set of labels printed with the names of the different chemicals commonly in use in the dark room may be had for 10 cents. They come already gummed and are a great convenience.

A convenient little plate lifter is called the "L." It is a tiny contrivance which fits on the side of the tray and saves all danger of scratching the plate in removing it from the tray, and there is no need of putting the fingers into any of the solutions if the "L." is used.
With this lifter, instead of rocking the tray during development, the plate is rocked with the lifter.—Harper's Round Table.

A BIDDING RIVALRY.

AN INCIDENT OF AN AUCTION OF OLD CHINA AND BRIC-A-BRAC.

What Happened When Two Women Each Determined to Have a $5 Cup and Saucer—
Hard to Tell Which Felt Worse
When It Was All Over.

It was the third day of an auction sale of the china, bric-a-brac and furniture of the last representative of an old New York family, and the auction room was crowded to the doors with dealers in antiques, connoisseurs, speculators and people who had just dropped in to fish up a bargain in glass or china if an opportunity offered. There were a large number of women present, and they were principally bargain seekers.

The auctioneer seemed used to such crowds and continued to call out the bids monotonously despite the amusing situation that arose every time he reached an article which one of the women had marked to buy for herself.
Things had been quiet for a time when the auctioneer reached No. 706 on the catalogue, which was a cup and saucer of Sevres china. It was a very pretty bit of Sevres, cleverly decorated and frail enough to suit the most artistic fancy. It was such a piece as might be purchased at any fine china or glass store for $5, and it certainly would not have been reasonable to expect more than $4 for it at auction sale. The auctioneer didn't expect more, and under ordinary circumstances he wouldn't have got so much, but these were not ordinary circumstances. It happened that two bargain seeking women had marked that cup and saucer for themselves. They were only separated by a dozen seats and an aisle through the maze of camp stools, and, of course, neither had any notion that she would have very much competition for such a trifle. They were well dressed women, and one was quite young. They sat in their seats without a word, while a cloisonne jardiniere worth $100 was knocked down to a dealer for $20, and they never ventured a bid on bits of Worcester, Dresden, Coalport and other kinds of china, which were sold for ridiculously low prices. But when the auctioneer wearily remarked in his professional tone: "What 'm I offered for this cup and saucer? Guarantee goes with every piece. Gimme a bid, please," he was amazed at two shrill voices which called out simultaneously:
"One dollar."

The two women peered across at one another.

Then the younger said in emphatic tone:

"A dollar and a half."

The auctioneer took in the situation.
What more could an auctioneer want?
Two women pitted against each other.
Sleepy a moment before, he was all life now.

"A half more!" he exclaimed scornfully. "Really this is ridiculous. I cannot take less than dollar bids."

"Two dollars," said the older woman.

"Three," said the other woman.

The women sized each other up again while the auctioneer exhorted.

"I'll fix her now," said the older woman to a friend. "Five dollars."

"Six," said the younger one.

"Why, the spiteful thing! I don't believe she wants that cup at all. Well, she just shan't have it. Seven dollars."

This time the younger woman hesi-tated. Every eye was on her, for the whole crowd was interested. She pressed her lips together, and, assuming an indifferent expression, made the bid $8, while the auctioneer nearly fell off his chair. Every head in the room turned with the bid to the older woman.

"Don't you bid another cent," said her friend.

"I'll just make this one bid. She doesn't want that cup. It's just spite, but I'll do her up now. Ten dollars," she exclaimed, and with a triumphant smile she glanced across the room.

That smile was too much for the other woman. It made her more determined.

"Oh, she needn't think I'm afraid of a couple of dollars," she remarked in a husky whisper to the pale faced man who had come with her to the auction and had been trying to get low enough in his seat to be out of sight of the eyes focused on his companion at every other bid.

"Let her have it," said the man. "It isn't worth the money."

"Let her have it? Well, I guess not.
Do you think I'll let her beat me like that? Eleven dollars," in a shaky voice, but with a sweet smile.

"Fine piece. Very fine Sevres. Worth big money," chanted the auctioneer.

"Well, I never!" exclaimed the older woman. "Of all the impudence I ever heard of! Oh, I'll fix her now!"

"Let her have it," urged her friend.

"Cora Stone, do you mean to tell me you mean that? Would you have me give in to that doll faced child? I'll show you how I'll give up to her. Fifteen dollars."

This was a staggerer. The young woman looked troubled. She raised the bid a half, and the auctioneer took it, because he saw the end was near. A point had been reached when bids were cheered, and the side remarks caused roars of laughter. The price reached $17, and the bid was the older woman's.
The pale man urged his companion not to bid, but those cheers rang in her ears, and every eye was upon her.

"And a half," she said.

"Then take it, you spiteful thing," suddenly yelled the older woman, right at her competitor. Then she rose to her feet. "Come, Cora! I shan't stay in such a place another moment." And she dounced out, followed by Cora.

The younger woman looked badly rattled. She handed out $17.50 to the clerk and took the cup and saucer.
Then she went out, looking very much embarrassed over the affair and wondering, probably, what had ever made her pay such a price for such a thing.—New York Sun.

LIGHTHOUSE IMPROVEMENT

Changes That Have Been Made In Lights and Lenses.

An article about lighthouses, entitled
"The Lights That Guide In the Night," is contributed by Lieutenant John M.
Ellicott to St. Nicholas. After telling of the growth in the number of lighthouses Lieutenant Ellicott says:

Meantime the means of lighting were being steadily improved. The open fire gave place to the oil lamp, then a curved mirror, called a parabolic mirror, was placed behind the lamp to bring the rays together; next, many lamps with mirrors were grouped about a central spindle, and some such lights are still in operation. The greatest stride came when an arrangement of lenses, known as the Fresnel lens, in front of a lamp replaced the mirror behind it. This lens was rapidly improved for lighthouse purposes, until now a cylindrical glass house surrounds the lamp flame. This house has lens shaped walls, which bend all the rays to form a horizontal zone of strong light which pierces the darkness to a great distance.

The rapid increase in the number of lighthouses has made it necessary to have some means of telling one from another, or, as it is termed, of giving to each light its "characteristic." Coloring the glass made the light dimmer, but as red comes most nearly to white light in brightness some lights have red lenses. The latest and best plan, however, is to set upright prisms at intervals in a circular framework around the lens and to revolve this frame by clockwork. Thus the light is made to flash every time a prism passes between it and an observer. By changing the number and places of the prisms or the speed of the clockwork the flashes for any one light can be made to occur at intervals of so many seconds for that light. Putting in red prisms gives still other changes. Thus each light has its "characteristic," and this is written down in signs on the charts and fully stated in the light lists carried by vessels. Thus, on a chart you may note that the light you want to sight is marked "F. W., v. W. FL, 10 sec.," which means that it is "fixed white varied by white flashes every ten seconds." When a light is sighted, you see if those are its characteristics, and if so you have found the right one.

The Iconoclast Throws a Big Stone at Boston's Famous Personage.

Iconoclast Boston has decided that if there ever was a Mother Goose with poetical talents—which isn't likely—she was not the Mother Goose buried in that city and whose grave has for years been haunted by sentimental, patriotic and more or less literary visitors from all parts of the country. It seems that the respectable Mrs. Elizabeth Goose, whom legend credits with the composition of all those sprightly lyrics in which, for no very good reason, children are supposed to take such delight, had no more right to a place among America's eminent women than Jack the Giant Killer has to be included among our famous generals. She lived and she died, and that, except the names of her parents and the fact that she had some children, is absolutely all which is known about her.

The story that she wrote, or at least collected, the famous poems is a myth invented by one of the presumably good lady's descendants. "Mere l'Oye" was from time out of mind a character in French fairy tales. The name first appeared in English in 1729, when the prose "Contes de ma mere l'Oye" were translated as "Tales of Passed Times by Mother Goose." This book became the property of John Newbery of London, the famous publisher of little books for children, and about 1765 he utilized the "trade name" by printing as a companion book "Mother Goose's Melodies." The latter was merely a collection of old English nursery rhymes.
From England it came to America and was reprinted by Isaiah Thomas of Worcester, Mass., about 1787, then by Munroe & Francis of Boston about 1825, and now by every one. The fiction about Mrs. Elizabeth Goose of Boston was started by John Flint Eliot about 1860, utterly without proof or probability, and has since been repeated, gaining imaginary details at every stage.—

The Uses of White Sand.

In some of the many trips taken to the seashore do not forget to bring home some clean white sand. It will be found very useful in arranging flowers for the table in low, shallow dishes, as well as for scouring purposes. If the jardiniere is filled three-quarters full with this sand, cattails and grasses can be arranged much more gracefully, the sand being heavy enough to hold them.

BURNS AND HIS MARY.

He sang of friendship and duty
And manhood all creeds above,
Of the dear, dewy glory of love,
And the sweetest, tenderest chord he gave
But the requiem poured o'er his lost Love's grave.

Then life was but futile longing
And earth but a beautiful tomb,
But songs through the silence were Thrilling.
And glory dwelt in the gloom,
And sorrow, the harp skilled and strong,
From the breaking heart drew its sweetest song.

When thy grief had heavenward striven
In melody trembling to prayer,
Did thy Mary remember in heaven
Her love by the braes of Ayr?
We know not, but earth that heard thee
Sing
Must cherish thy song to her latest spring.

Deep heart, so lavish in loving!
Oh, wayward and broken heart!
As deaf from our shallow reproving
As safe from our praise-thou art.
Yet thy song shall thrill us while love
Shall last
And thy sorrow move us till death be past.
—Maggie Clare in New York Sun.

Mrs. Newlight Makes a Series of Astonishing Discoveries.

"It's just awful how criminally ignorant I've been regarding our food," said Mrs. Newlight to her husband the other day. "I can never be thankful enough that I joined Professor Scarem's class in domestic science. My! It's a wonder we're not all dead, ignorant as I've been. There's one thing sure, George Newlight—there'll be no more tomatoes on my table."

"Why?"

"Because Professor Scarem explained to us today how tomatoes cause a marked arrest of vital activity in those who eat them, and he proved that the acid of tomatoes acts almost like a poison on the membrane of the stomach. Then I'm done with any berries that have seeds in on my table."

"I'd like to know why?"

"You wouldn't ask if you'd heard the professor's talk on appendicitis and its cause. A single dish of raspberries or strawberries may bring on that awful trouble. It's fearful to think of the risks people will run just to gratify the palate. And here we've always allowed our children to have sugar and cream on their oatmeal!"

"What of it?"

"Well, you'd say 'What of it?' if you could hear the professor explain how the combination of oatmeal and cream and sugar causes dreadful gases to arise in the stomach and utterly retards digestion. I've not the slightest doubt that the awful spasm our little Mamie had last year was due entirely to this cause. Then there's bananas. Why, George Newlight, they're simply rank poison! And you'll get no more white bread at my table."

"Why not?"

"Because there's no more nutrition in it than there would be in bread made out of pure starch. Every bit of the nutritive element has been refined out of it. It makes those who eat it thin blooded."

"Do I look thin blooded or as if I lacked nutrition?" asked Newlight, who weighs 199.

"That doesn't signify. You don't know what day you'll begin to break down under such bread. We'll have nothing but graham or whole wheat flour hereafter. And I've done with coffee too. If you could see and hear Professor Scarem demonstrate just how poisonous it is to the whole human system you'd shun it as you shun opium. He says that cocoa shells is the only real safe warm drink."

"I'd as soon drink dishwater," said Newlight.

"You'd better drink dishwater than your poisonous coffee. If you'd only take a little time to study domestic science and look into this food business a little, it would be a good thing for your health and the health of your family. There's a lot more things we've been jeopardizing our lives by eating in our criminal ignorance, and I'm going to cut all of them off our list."

And she did, which is the reason that Newlight is taking most of his meals down town at present.—Detroit Free Press.

Washington Puzzles Him.

"I have found my way across pathless prairies where I had never been before, and even through the tangled mazes of a chaparral thicket, without getting lost, but I never come to a strange city without getting absolutely bewildered," said Mr. H. M. Barker of New Mexico. "I have been to Washington at least a dozen times in the past three years, and yet it is just as strange to me now, after a sojourn of two weeks, as it was the first time I ever set foot in the district. If I get one block away from my hotel I lose my reckoning, and I find myself wondering continually whether I am going toward the capitol or in the direction of the treasury. I get sore with myself for being so slow to find my bearings, but I hear other men owning up to the same difficulty. It certainly is queer that there should be such a difference between people, for I know plenty of men that can go anywhere they choose in a city a few hours after landing in it, but take them out into the country, and they would get lost like the babes in the woods"—Washington Post.

A Remarkable Portrait.

The pope has received, through the Countess Maria Festetics, maid of honor to the empress of Austria, a somewhat remarkable portrait of the emperor Francis Joseph. It is wrought in silk and cotton, and its production involved an enormous amount of labor and expense, the effect of light and shade being produced by only two colors. The factory from which it comes is the famous one of Wernstadt, in Bohemia. The portrait, which Leo XIII is having placed in his library, received a gold medal at the Chicago World's fair.

BEAUTIFUL FLORENCE.

A City Praised For Its Good Manners and Harmonious Surroundings.

If I wished to teach an awkward child, youth or girl good manners by example, I should send him or her to Florence, says a writer to Truth (London). There may be ill-mannered persons there, but I never saw one. Poor people behave with the suave dignity which used in England to stamp the lady or gentleman. Most persons are brainy, but cleverness is not eager to shine. It is very subdued and more oily than corrosive. The charm of Florence steals on one like the wit of its clever inhabitants. The senses are soothed in all directions by harmonious manners and objects. Architects understood chiaroscuro not less than the great painters and sculptors. One never wears of the streets and public buildings. Their aspects constantly and strongly vary, according to the course of the sun. Lights and shades at 10 in the forenoon are wholly different from what they will be at 4 in the afternoon. The Florentine women have interesting though not beautiful faces. But one has only to walk into the market to see country girls who would have done for models for Raphael's Virgin mothers. One is struck in the galleries with the nice judgment with which the pictures are hung. What more lofty in sentiment than the tomb of Lorenzo de' Medici? Loftiness is an attribute of Florentine architecture, palatial or domestic. The doors of private houses might pass in England for portals. One feels them to be great facts in their way.

Talking of harmonious things reminds me of the Boboli gardens. Is there a spot in England, the land of stately and lovely seats, that at all approaches them? In situation and tranquil, generous loveliness I can only think of one—the Duke of Northumberland's terraced gardens at his place in Surrey. The Boboli Eden, where the Prince and Princess of Naples still court seclusion, has the advantage over the Surrey paradise of being under a revealing sky. Every shade of greenery, every floral hue, is well brought out. One sees the faultless texture of statues and fountains mellowed by time. In so strong a light a well ordered design is required, and one has it. The marbles are the climax. They are to the horticultural beauties as brilliants to the lace and satin of a fine woman's dress.

Florence is not what it was in the grand ducal days. Still, it retains the air of a capital with a long and illustrious history. The ladies' dresses are only provincial when measured by the Paris standard, to which Italian women above the peasant class generally submit—more's the pity. Paris fashions only suit Frenchwomen, unless applied by French hairdressers and femmes de chambre. An English or a German face under a Paris hat or bonnet is at a dreadful disadvantage if the hair has not been first dressed by a French artiste capillaire. He places the hat, through the medium of the hair, in harmonious relation with the face. I fancy these French coiffeurs are not much employed by Italian ladies.

Blue White Prints.

Paper coated with an emulsion, which when printed and toned gives a clear white with a bluish tint in the high lights, may be bought of dealers in photographic materials. The paper is marked "Pense," which is a mistake, as the correct spelling is "pensee." This blue tone may be obtained on aristo paper by toning the prints in a separate bath and putting a few drops of aniline blue in the fixing bath. Have the tint rather deep, and when the prints are fixed the whites and high lights will have a clear blue tone. If the picture is a landscape with plenty of clouds in the sky the effect is almost as if the sky had been tinted.

Many spots both on prints and negatives are due to the dishes used not having been properly cleaned. The trays should be wiped out with a very soft cloth or sponge, and once in a while washed with a little alcohol.

A set of labels printed with the names of the different chemicals commonly in use in the dark room may be had for 10 cents. They come already gummed and are a great convenience.

A convenient little plate lifter is called the "L." It is a tiny contrivance which fits on the side of the tray and saves all danger of scratching the plate in removing it from the tray, and there is no need of putting the fingers into any of the solutions if the "L" is used. With this lifter, instead of rocking the tray during development, the plate is rocked with the lifter.—Harper's Round Table.

What Is Really Needed.

"Somebody has invented another talking machine."

"That's a stupid thing to do. Won't these scientists ever learn that what the world needs is listening machines?"—Chicago Record.

A BIDDING RIVALRY.

AN INCIDENT OF AN AUCTION OF OLD CHINA AND BRIC-A-BRAC.

What Happened When Two Women Each Determined to Have a $5 Cup and Saucer—Hard to Tell Which Felt Worse When It Was All Over.

It was the third day of an auction sale of the china, bric-a-brac and furniture of the last representative of an old New York family, and the auction room was crowded to the doors with dealers in antiques, connoisseurs, speculators and people who had just dropped in to fish up a bargain in glass or china if an opportunity offered. There were a large number of women present, and they were principally bargain seekers.

The auctioneer seemed used to such crowds and continued to call out the bids monotonously despite the amusing situation that arose every time he reached an article which one of the women had marked to buy for herself. Things had been quiet for a time when the auctioneer reached No. 706 on the catalogue, which was a cup and saucer of Sevres china. It was a very pretty bit of Sevres, cleverly decorated and frail enough to suit the most artistic fancy. It was such a piece as might be purchased at any fine china or glass store for $5, and it certainly would not have been reasonable to expect more than $4 for it at auction sale. The auctioneer didn't expect more, and under ordinary circumstances he wouldn't have got so much, but these were not ordinary circumstances. It happened that two bargain seeking women had marked that cup and saucer for themselves. They were only separated by a dozen seats and an aisle through the maze of camp stools, and, of course, neither had any notion that she would have very much competition for such a trifle. They were well dressed women, and one was quite young. They sat in their seats without a word, while a cloisonne jardiniere worth $100 was knocked down to a dealer for $20, and they never ventured a bid on bits of Worcester, Dresden, Coalport and other kinds of china, which were sold for ridiculously low prices. But when the auctioneer wearily remarked in his professional tone: "What 'I offered for this cup and saucer? Guarantee goes with every piece. Gimme a bid, please," he was amazed at two shrill voices which called out simultaneously:

The two women peered across at one another.

Then the younger said in emphatic tone:

"A dollar and a half."

The auctioneer took in the situation. What more could an auctioneer want? Two women pitted against each other. Sleepy a moment before, he was all life now.

"A half more!" he exclaimed scornfully. "Really this is ridiculous. I cannot take less than dollar bids."

"Two dollars," said the older woman.

"Three," said the other woman.

The women sized each other up again while the auctioneer exhorted.

"I'll fix her now," said the older woman to a friend. "Five dollars."

"Six," said the younger one.

"Why, the spiteful thing! I don't believe she wants that cup at all. Well, she just shan't have it. Seven dollars."

This time the younger woman hesitated. Every eye was on her, for the whole crowd was interested. She pressed her lips together, and, assuming an indifferent expression, made the bid $8, while the auctioneer nearly fell off his chair. Every head in the room turned with the bid to the older woman.

"Don't you bid another cent," said her friend.

"I'll just make this one bid. She doesn't want that cup. It's just spite, but I'll do her up now. Ten dollars," she exclaimed, and with a triumphant smile she glanced across the room.

That smile was too much for the other woman. It made her more determined.

"Oh, she needn't think I'm afraid of a couple of dollars," she remarked in a husky whisper to the pale faced man who had come with her to the auction and had been trying to get low enough in his seat to be out of sight of the eyes focused on his companion at every other bid.

"Let her have it," said the man. "It isn't worth the money."

"Let her have it? Well, I guess not. Do you think I'll let her beat me like that? Eleven dollars," in a shaky voice, but with a sweet smile.

"Fine piece. Very fine Sevres. Worth big money," chanted the auctioneer.

"Well, I never!" exclaimed the older woman. "Of all the impudence I ever heard of! Oh, I'll fix her now!"

"Let her have it," urged her friend.

"Cora Stone, do you mean to tell me you mean that? Would you have me give in to that doll faced child? I'll show you how I'll give up to her. Fifteen dollars."

This was a staggerer. The young woman looked troubled. She raised the bid a half, and the auctioneer took it, because he saw the end was near. A point had been reached when bids were cheered, and the side remarks caused roars of laughter. The price reached $17, and the bid was the older woman's. The pale man urged his companion not to bid, but those cheers rang in her ears, and every eye was upon her.

"Then take it, you spiteful thing," suddenly yelled the older woman, right at her competitor. Then she rose to her feet. "Come, Cora! I shan't stay in such a place another moment." And she flounced out, followed by Cora.

The younger woman looked badly rattled. She handed out $17.50 to the clerk and took the cup and saucer. Then she went out, looking very much embarrassed over the affair and wondering, probably, what had ever made her pay such a price for such a thing.—New York Sun.

LIGHTHOUSE IMPROVEMENT

Changes That Have Been Made In Lights and Lenses.

An article about lighthouses, entitled "The Lights That Guide In the Night," is contributed by Lieutenant John M. Ellicott to St. Nicholas. After telling of the growth in the number of lighthouses Lieutenant Ellicott says:

Meantime the means of lighting were being steadily improved. The open fire gave place to the oil lamp, then a curved mirror, called a parabolic mirror, was placed behind the lamp to bring the rays together; next, many lamps with mirrors were grouped about a central spindle, and some such lights are still in operation. The greatest stride came when an arrangement of lenses, known as the Fresnel lens, in front of a lamp replaced the mirror behind it. This lens was rapidly improved for lighthouse purposes, until now a cylindrical glass house surrounds the lamp flame. This house has lens shaped walls, which tend all the rays to form a horizontal zone of strong light which pierces the darkness to a great distance.

The rapid increase in the number of lighthouses has made it necessary to have some means of telling one from another, or, as it is termed, of giving to each light its "characteristic." Coloring the glass made the light dimmer, but as red comes most nearly to white light in brightness some lights have red lenses. The latest and best plan, however, is to set upright prisms at intervals in a circular framework around the lens and to revolve this frame by clockwork. Thus the light is made to flash every time a prism passes between it and an observer. By changing the number and places of the prisms or the speed of the clockwork the flashes for any one light can be made to occur at intervals of so many seconds for that light. Putting in red prisms gives still other changes. Thus each light has its "characteristic," and this is written down in signs on the charts and fully stated in the light lists carried by vessels. Thus, on a chart you may note that the light you want to sight is marked "F. W., v. W. Fl., 10 sec.," which means that it is "fixed white varied by white flashes every ten seconds." When a light is sighted, you see if those are its characteristics, and if so you have found the right one.

MOTHER GOOSE.

The Iconoclast Throws a Big Stone at Boston's Famous Personage.

Iconoclastic Boston has decided that if there ever was a Mother Goose with poetical talents—which isn't likely—she was not the Mother Goose buried in that city and whose grave has for years been haunted by sentimental, patriotic and more or less literary visitors from all parts of the country. It seems that the respectable Mrs. Elizabeth Goose, whom legend credits with the composition of all those sprightly lyrics in which, for no very good reason, children are supposed to take such delight, had no more right to a place among America's eminent women than Jack the Giant Killer has to be included among our famous generals. She lived and she died, and that, except the names of her parents and the fact that she had some children, is absolutely all which is known about her.

The story that she wrote, or at least collected, the famous poems is a myth invented by one of the presumably good lady's descendants. "Mere l'Oye" was from time out of mind a character in French fairy tales. The name first appeared in English in 1729, when the prose "Contes de ma mere l'Oye" were translated as "Tales of Passed Times by Mother Goose." This book became the property of John Newbery of London, the famous publisher of little books for children, and about 1765 he utilized the trade name by printing as a companion book "Mother Goose's Melodies." The latter was merely a collection of old English nursery rhymes. From England it came to America and was reprinted by Isaiah Thomas of Worcester, Mass., about 1787, then by Munroe & Francis of Boston about 1825, and now by every one. The fiction about Mrs. Elizabeth Goose of Boston was started by John Flint Eliot about 1860, utterly without proof or probability, and has since been repeated, gaining imaginary details at every stage.—New York Times.

The Uses of White Sand.

In some of the many trips taken to the seashore do not forget to bring home some clean white sand. It will be found very useful in arranging flowers for the table in low, shallow dishes, as well as for scouring purposes. If the jardiniere is filled three-quarters full with this sand, cattails and grasses can be arranged much more gracefully, the sand being heavy enough to hold them.

PAT DENSMORE IS FREE

He Was Pardoned by the Governor Yesterday.

CONSUMPTION HAS SEIZED HIM

Although Nothing More Than a Shadow of His Former Self He Made the Journey Without Serious Results—The Crime For Which He Was Sentenced.

Governor Bushnell put his name to a document yesterday, at Columbus, which gave Patrick Densmore his freedom, and allowed him to leave for home on the midnight train.

Densmore arrived in the city this morning, accompanied by his sister, Mrs. Mary Riley. They came in on the 8 o'clock train, and were driven at once to the home of Mrs. Densmore. He is little more than a shadow of his former self, and shows plainly the ravages of consumption. Although he stood the journey very well, he is a sick man today. The pardon was directly due to the statement of the doctors that he was very ill with consumption, and the strenuous efforts of his friends to have him liberated. Densmore had no black marks against his name, and since the sentence conducted himself so well that he had already gained some time. He was in the hospital for weeks.

Densmore was given five years for cutting William Poyser in a fight in John McFadden's saloon Aug. 13, 1895. For a time it was feared the man would die, but as he recovered and it was shown that Densmore's deed was not altogether without provocation, the sentence was light.

Obituary.

Ella Watson born in Pleasant county, W. Va., June 2, 1866. Her disease was inflammation of the stomach. The deceased was a worthy member of the M. E. church. She was especially active and useful in the church. She was paid a pastoral visit a few days previous to her death, and she expressed herself as resigned to the divine will, saying, "I am not afraid," and her last words were, "Jesus can make a dying bed as soft as downy pillows are."

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks to the ladies of the Order of Rechabites, and the friends who were so kind to us in our late sad bereavement.

THE ROAD WAS SOLD

Bondholders Were the Only Bidders.

Herbert Payson Deposited the Required Amount of Bonds, and It Was Given to Him as the Only Person Entitled to Name a Price—It Brought $102,000.

LISBON, May 5.—[Special]—A large crowd gathered in front of the court house soon after noon today for the purpose of seeing the East Liverpool and Wellsville street railway handed over to the highest bidder, and the line went to the bondholders for $102,000.

This morning A. L. Johnson, Secretary Davies, Superintendent Andrews, and Charles Brookes, attorney for the Cleveland Trust company, came to town. Herbert Payson, trustee of the bondholders, was already here, and calling at the sheriff's office deposited, according to the requirements of the sale, $20,000 in bonds. There were no other deposits, and he was therefore the only person entitled to bid. When the appointed hour arrived the sale was announced by Deputy Supplee, and Mr. Payson bid $102,000. The road was declared his without further delay. It was appraised for $151,300. It is understood here that a company will be formed at once, and it will be operated. A statement was made that the old stockholders would again secure control of the line, and operate it as in the past. Little reliance was placed in the rumor.

H. J. Riley, of Pittsburg, was defeated in the case where he sought to recover judgment against Stevenson & Co., of Wellsville, for $145. The jury gave him a verdict for $5, due him for services as an attorney.

The common pleas judges of Stark, Carroll and Columbiana have chosen the following jury commissioners for this county: J. F. Hull, Liverpool; C. Townsend, Salem; P. F. Vollnogle, Unity; J. P. McDonald, West.

Sabastian Calyon was acquitted last night. He was charged with shooting Mr. Ross at Leetonia. It happened at Ross' home, and it was stated the quarrel occurred over a Salem girl, but it was developed at the hearing that it was an accident.

ROBISON ARRAIGNED.

He Will Be Defended by Judge Young and H. E. Grosshans.

LISBON, May 5.—[Special]—Z. S. Robison, charged with murder, was taken before Judge Smith in probate court room this afternoon, and Judge Young and H. E. Grosshans were appointed to defend him. The trial will likely commence June 14.

A Coincidence.

"The man who brought this in," remarked the editor's assistant as he unrolled half a yard of manuscript, "told me confidentially that he needed the money for it."
"Yes," was the melancholy answer, "it's a strange fact that the longest poems seem almost invariably to be written by the shortest poets."—Washington Star.

Serving Carrots.
A way of serving carrots is the following, evolved by a cook desirous, as all cooks should be, of "something new." The vegetable is scraped, diced and boiled till tender. Meanwhile a slice of onion is browned in a tablespoonful of butter. With this one tablespoonful of flour is rubbed smooth and stirred until the flour is cooked. Then one cup of tomato juice, salted, is added to the mixture with a half teaspoonful of salt and a dash of pepper. The whole is stirred together three or four minutes before being strained over the carrots, which have been drained. This dish is much more palatable than the creamed carrots because it adds a needed flavor and is none the harder to prepare than the better known preparation.—New York Post.

I would call the attention of all persons contemplating building to the fact that it will be to their interest to see me, as I have cut my charges one-half; my present price being three-fourths up to one and one-half per cent. of the cost of building and in some cases a fraction more. Having many years practice in contracting, building, drawing plans and specifications, and knowing the strength of all material and work, both by theory and practice, and therefore have no need of measuring up other architects work. I can guarantee all buildings I draw plans and specifications for, and superintend, to stand the test and the walls not crack and settle out of plumb as some specimens we have in this city have done.

A very pleasant surprise party was held Monday evening at the home of Officer Moore, in honor of his wife, who leaves Friday for a trip to England. She was presented with a handsome umbrella.

Jean Sweeney returned this morning from Kokomo, Ind., where he was employed in the Cox pottery, recently burned. The plant is almost rebuilt, and will start in June. He will return in a couple of weeks.

Doc McFarland was so unfortunate yesterday as to lose 40 pigs within half an hour. He does not know what caused their death, since they did nothing but lay down and quietly ceased to live. They were pigs of good blood, and valuable.

THE ROAD WAS SOLD

Bondholders Were the Only Bidders.

Herbert Payson Deposited the Required Amount of Bonds, and It Was Given to Him as the Only Person Entitled to Same a Price—It Brought $102,000.

Lisbon, May 5.—[Special]—A large crowd gathered in front of the court house soon after noon today for the purpose of seeing the East Liverpool and Wellsville street railway handed over to the highest bidder, and the line went to the bondholders for $102,000.

This morning A. L. Johnson, Secretary Davies, Superintendent Andrews, and Charles Brookes, attorney for the Cleveland Trust company, came to town. Herbert Payson, trustee of the bondholders, was already here, and calling at the sheriff's office deposited, according to the requirements of the sale, $20,000 in bonds. There were no other deposits, and he was therefore the only person entitled to bid. When the appointed hour arrived the sale was announced by Deputy Supplee, and Mr. Payson bid $102,000. The road was declared his without further delay. It was appraised for $151,300. It is understood here that a company will be formed at once, and it will be operated. A statement was made that the old stockholders would again secure control of the line, and operate it as in the past. Little reliance was placed in the rumor.

H. J. Riley, of Pittsburg, was defeated in the case where he sought to recover judgment against Stevenson & Co., of Wellsville, for $145. The jury gave him a verdict for $5, due him for services as an attorney.

The common pleas judges of Stark, Carroll and Columbiana have chosen the following jury commissioners for this county: J. F. Hull, Liverpool; C. Townsend, Salem; P. F. Vollnogle, Unity; J. P. McDonald, West.

Sabastian Calyon was acquitted last night. He was charged with shooting Mr. Ross at Leetonia. It happened at Ross' home, and it was stated the quarrel occurred over a Salem girl, but it was developed at the hearing that it was an accident.

ROBISON ARRAIGNED.

He Will Be Defended by Judge Young and H. E. Grosshans.

Lisbon, May 5.—[Special]—Z. S. Robison, charged with murder, was taken before Judge Smith in probate court room this afternoon, and Judge Young and H. E. Grosshans were appointed to defend him. The trial will likely commence June 14.

A Coincidence.

"The man who brought this in," remarked the editor's assistant as he unrolled half a yard of manuscript, "told me confidentially that he needed the money for it."

"Yes," was the melancholy answer, "it's a strange fact that the longest poems seem almost invariably to be written by the shortest poets."—Washington Star.

Serving Carrots.

A way of serving carrots is the following, evolved by a cook desirous, as all cooks should be, of "something new." The vegetable is scraped, diced and boiled till tender. Meanwhile a slice of onion is broiled in a tablespoonful of butter. With this one tablespoonful of flour is rubbed smooth and stirred until the flour is cooked. Then one cup of tomato juice, strained, is added to the mixture with a half teaspoonful of salt and a dash of pepper. The whole is stirred together three or four minutes before being strained over the carrots, which have been drained. This dish is much more palatable than the creamed carrots because it adds a needed flavor and is none the harder to prepare than the better known preparation.—New York Post.

Architect Fritz

To the Public.

I would call the attention of all persons contemplating building to the fact that it will be to their interest to see me, as I have cut my charges one-half; my present price being three-fourths up to one and one-half per cent. of the cost of building and in some cases a fraction more. Having many years practice in contracting, building, drawing plans and specifications, and knowing the strength of all material and work, both by theory and practice, and therefore have no need of measuring up other architects work. I can guarantee all buildings I draw plans and specifications for, and superintend, to stand the test and the walls not crack and settle out of plumb as some specimens we have in this city have done.
